WE NOMINATE

Henry DeWolf Smyth, one of the truly distinguished American-born physicists and a Princetonian since the turn of the century, who for the past three decades has literally dedicated his life to working "for the peaceful uses of atomic energy and for the control of its military uses." This week the 70-year old Smyth, United States Ambassador to the International Atomic Energy Agency, Vienna, since 1961, was one of the three scientists singled out to share the Atoms for Peace Award which is awarded periodically by an eminent panel of trustees "solely on the merit of the contribution, wherever found in the world and without regard for nationality or politics."

On October 14th at Rockefeller University, New York City, each of the three recipients (Smyth together with two of his associates in the International Atomic Energy Agency, Sweden's Sigvard Eklund and Pakistan's Abdus Salam) will receive a gold medallion and an honorarium of $30,000. This will be the eighth award under the Atoms for Peace Program, established as a memorial to Henry Ford and his son Edsel in response to President Eisenhower's 1955 appeal at Geneva for international efforts to develop nuclear energy for peaceful purposes. Among earlier winners was Smyth's colleague in Princeton University's Department of Physics, Nobel Laureate Eugene P. Wigner.

Smyth, a member of the Princeton Faculty from 1924 until his retirement two years ago, was first "drafted" for government service in 1940 — before work on the atomic bomb had started — as a consultant on research programs for the National Defense Research Council and the Office of Scientific Research and Development. Over the years, serving under five Presidents of the United States, he has contributed substantially to shaping the nuclear power policies of America and the Western World.

He was engaged in teaching and research here at Princeton when President Truman appointed him to the Atomic Energy Commission in May, 1949. At the outbreak of the Korean War he was asked to prolong his government service and in June, 1951, accepted a further appointment by the President to a five-year term. His resignation from the Commission and his return to Princeton in the fall of 1954 came approximately 18 months before the expiration of that term. In June, 1954, with characteristic candor, Smyth had been the only member of the five-man Atomic Energy Commission to vote in favor of restoring government clearance to the late Robert Oppenheimer.

It was in 1944 that Smyth was called upon to write his now famous report, "Atomic Energy for Military Purposes," popularly known as the "Smyth Report," which was published in September, 1945, by Princeton University Press a month after it had been released as a government document. Earlier Smyth had suggested to President Roosevelt's advisers the need for such a report inasmuch as a new age in international relations would inevitably follow the explosion of the first atomic bomb. In the preface to this compelling document, Smyth explained: "The ultimate responsibility for our nation's policy rests on its citizens and they can discharge such responsibilities wisely only if they are informed."

For his exemplary services as "representative, interpreter, and diplomat of science in the affairs of the Free World;" for pinpointing as early as 1944 the urgent need for evolving international controls for future atomic energy development; for strengthening and promoting systems of safeguards directed at preventing the diversion of nuclear materials to military use; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee as

READY FOR SCHOOL!

Schools Are. On Wednesday, September 4, five thousand and two — that right: 5,002 — boys and girls will enter the classrooms of the Princeton Regional School system.

● "Education is where the action is." That's the way Superintendent Philip E. McPherson starts off his second year as principal of Princeton's schools.

● "We have a lot of interesting 'stirring about' in our schools this year, with a growing feeling of freedom on the part of teachers and principals." That's the way Mrs. George Fremon, school board president, sees the new year ahead.

At every grade level, those 5,002 students will find something new. But also, Dr. McPherson believes, a greater stability.

"This is the third school year since regionalization," he reminds Princeton "and really our first 'normal' year. But I don't define 'normal' as 'status quo.' What we have now, is a stable foundation we can begin to build on."

Where and Who? First, let's assign those 5,002 boys and girls. According to Dr. McPherson's figures, 1,750 of them will be in Princeton High School; 1062 will be in the Middle School; 2,190 will be in the elementary schools.

Princeton still has an open door for high school students in four "sending districts." All high school boys and girls from West Windsor and Plainsboro — grades nine through 12 — attend P.H.S. Montgomery Township and Rocky Hill are being phased out. This fall, only 11th and 12th graders will attend P.H.S. from Montgomery; only 10th, 11th and 12th graders from Rocky Hill. West Windsor has been asked to withdraw by 1971 and is working toward a high school of its own, but probably cannot complete one by that time.

SO WHAT'S NEW?

John Witherspoon School has a do-it-yourself reading program for first and second grades. Let by Dr. Wesley Johnson, principal, and Mrs. Kathryn Michael, Mrs. Patricia Walkley, teachers, and Mrs. Barbara Jones, this program began last year with 75 youngsters in three classes, and will expand this year.

BACK TO SCHOOL ISSUE

The current issue of TOWN TOPICS presents numerous stories, features and pictures which reflect the educational scene in Princeton. Topics range from a statewide "first" in occupational guidance at Princeton High School and a report on a highly-successful program of seminars at Princeton Day School, to progress in sex education and curriculum enrichment through the addition of "Black Culture" in the Regional Schools. Also included are a complete back-to-school calendar and all Regional Schools home room assignments.

It's programmed reading, where you learn at you rown rate, plus team - teaching, where you get the benefit of individualized attention, if you're moving so fast you need help just to keep on the track, or so slowly that you need a gentle push, the individualized attention is there.

With most children learing to read on their own through the programming technique, each of the three teachers has more time for the individual child.

"Non-grading" is a word used here, meaning that lines between First Grade and Second Grade are deliberately blurred. Last spring, however, there were promotions, so as Mrs. Dorothea Lummis points out (she's curriculum coordinator for the schools), the "non-grading" isn't pure and clear.

Also at John Witherspoon. Third-graders (Miss Doris A. Smithey); fourth graders (Miss Andrea Martin) and fifth-graders (Theodore Hammond) will be stirred together in "multi-age grouping," so pupils at various levels of ability in reading and math, can work together without regard to grade. For science and social studies, grades will be separate.

Middle School. Five teachers and their principal, Eugene Biringer, are excited about a new flexible schedule for 80 junior-high-age youngsters.

The five teachers will have the same 80 children all the time, except for things like gym. Time partitions will be removed so that blocks of, perhaps, two hours can be devoted to subjects that cross subject-matter lines.

For example, a total program on the Presidential elections involving social studies, English and math might take up one whole "block" in a morning. A similar "block" of time is provided for the afternoon.

The teachers are Miss Virginia Euell (science); Mrs. Georgine Hall (English); Ray-

VALLEY ROAD AUDITORIUM? YES! Remodeled by Collins, Uhl and Hoisington, the old Valley Road auditorium is becoming a modern library-learning center for Middle School children. That's the old stage at the rear. A glass wall across its front will partition off listening rooms, filmstrip rooms and the like. There will be reading areas and a reference section and carrels where students can work on their own, with tapes, books or other tools of individual research. (Marie Bellis Photo).

Princeton High School. There is a new nine-period schedule; the new plan dividing the ninth grade into two units and the deepened vocational program. (See "Topics of the Town").

Dr. McPherson believes that the "unit" idea for the ninth grade will have a wide influence on the school system as a whole.

What coming? Next Tuesday, at its August public meeting the Board of Education is expected to pass a routine bookkeeping resolution making the current budget legal.

Residents who followed the budget matter last winter will recall that the final decision left $30,000 to be cut from the budget in unspecified areas. The cut was made entirely in transportation: the board doubled up on some bus routes, and also found itself in a lucky buyer's market, because the change in the state's private school busing law cut back the business for many bus companies and made them more eager to negotiate.

Early this fall, the board expects a report from the educational consulting firm that is working on school enrollment data and making population projections.

Early next spring, the board and Dr. McPherson hope to look three years ahead, with those enrollment figures at hand, and make some vital decisions about school facilities.

Right through the school year, the board and the teachers will be developing what Dr. McPherson calls "a fundamental new approach to teachers' salaries."

Discussions will begin this fall, and will be opened to the public before decisions are made, Dr. McPherson says.

And sometime this fall, board members and superintendent will begin to talk about ways to approach the next budget.

WORK NEAR COMPLETION

At Bayard Lane and Hodge. Construction work that has forced motorists coming up Bayard Lane toward Nassau to detour at Hodge Road or Avalon Place during the past three weeks is scheduled to be completed "within the next couple of days."

Borough engineer Thomas Cawley reported that the telephone company is installing the last section of a conduit that runs from Moore to Nassau all the way to Elm and Hodge. The reason the job took longer than expected, Mr. Cawley added, is that the workmen hit solid rock. "They had to drill the whole thing."

The telephone company is installing a total of six ducts to reinforce its service. "Before, it had only two lines; now it will have six," Mr. Cawley said. He added that it was his understanding that eventually the telephone ducts would be extended to the Western Electric complex on Carter Road.

MRS. MALE WILL RUN

For Borough Council. Mrs. Raymond F. Male has been chosen by the Princeton Democrats to run for Borough Council this fall on the ticket with James Andrews.

At a meeting held Tuesday night, the executive committee of the Princeton Democratic Association agreed unanimously that Mrs. Male should be the candidate and she has accepted the position. She replaces former candidate Stephen Gladstone, who has moved away from Princeton.

The decision was reached by the Democratic Association's executive committee: Nicholas J. Bartolino, president; Edward F. Sweeney, vice president; Miss Esther Dilworth, treasurer; Mrs. Mathilde Finch, secretary; Martin Lombardo, Edmund Carroll, Mrs. Wilson Coan, Miss Mary Perone, Wilbert Brooks, Mrs. Elizabeth Hall and Montague Brown.

Black Culture Will Enrich Curriculum Here

Summer Research Committee Makes Major Innovations

● Black soldiers in the Union Army during the Civil War received only half the pay of white soldiers.

● All black soldiers in the Civil War were volunteers: the draft applied only to white soldiers.

● Over 20 black fighting men received the Congressional Medal of Honor for heroism in the Civil War.

Facts like these will be taught this year for the first time in Princeton High School's American History classes, representing some of the research done this summer by a school committee on "Black Culture in America."

The work of this committee will be reflected, in various ways, in the entire kindergarten-through-12th-grade curriculum of the Princeton Regional Schools, with the sharpest focus in American history and English classes at the high school.

All New Jersey public high schools are required to teach two years of American History, and New Jersey's Department of Education has asked each school to include in the history curriculum as much factual material as possible about the role played in American history by black Americans.

Here in Princeton, Superintendent Philip E. McPherson asked Mrs. Dorothea Lummis, curriculum co-ordinator for the schools; Dr. Henry Drewry, chairman of the social studies department at Princeton High School, and Mrs. Jean McDonough, library co-ordinator, to block out a summer workshop so that teachers could do research into black culture and make recommendations based on their research.

Dr. Drewry was project chairman. Douglas Coulter, high school history teacher, and Mrs. Catherine Stecchini, high school English teacher, worked at the 9-12-grade level. Mrs. Elaine Solomon, of the Middle School faculty with the title of working chairman, joined A. William Licht of the Middle School, to prepare recommendations for that level and Mrs. Barbara Taylor and Mrs. Kiki Tamashir developed black culture studies for the primary grades.

"It was terribly rewarding,"

CHAIRMAN: Henry Drewry, formerly head of the history department at Princeton High School, now affiliated with Princeton University, served as Project Chairman of the Black Culture Committee for the Princeton Regional Schools.

TOPICS Of The Town

commeots Dr. Drewry, "not only because of the results, but because it allowed teachers to become intimately involved in planning."

Community Is Involved. The committee of teachers met with half a dozen Princeton Negroes to discuss goals and thoughts. To begin with, everyone agreed that the new material on black culture should be integrated within the curriculum, not isolated as a separate course.

Also, teachers and citizens agreed that subject matter should be included in a specific way, not simply referred to at random, at the option of the teacher.

In the history department, for example, all history teachers will be required to teach the facts (like those used as examples above.) Beyond that, a teacher may discuss objectives and source materials with his students as he sees fit.

Within the two years of American History, high school students will get the new black culture material in units on the Abolitionist movement, the Civil War and Reconstruction. This is just a start, Mr. Coulter emphasizes, chiefly because the teachers had only two weeks this summer to do research and make plans. Dr. Drewry has developed a unit on "Origins of slavery and racial prejudice" which can be used in either the first or second years of American History.

Incidentally, the overall title, "Black Culture in America" was agreed on by citizens and teachers together. The two terms "Negro" and "Black" were discussed and evaluated, and the concensus was that "black" was preferable.

English, Too. In the English Department at Princeton High, teachers will draw on the research done by Mrs. Stecchini for English classes in all four high school years.

In the 11th grade, when all students traditionally study American Literature, William Cook of the English faculty, will teach a new five-to-six week unit on "The Negro in American Literature," using such books as Ralph Ellison's "The Invisible Man."

The thread that will run through the four years of high school English will go back to the years before 1920 when, as Mrs. Stecchini phrasesit, books by or about Negroes were "Victorian in tone," describing the suffering of black people but not suggesting that anything be done about it.

Books on the reading lists will point up the difference between the "assimilationist" feelings after World War II and the militancy and separatism of the present.

One of the most fascinating books she found, Mrs. Stecchini says, is "The Klan," the book from which the film, "Birth of a Nation," was made. Mostly, however, she has concentrated on contemporary writers, and she cites William Melvin Kelly's "A Different Drummer" and John A. Williams "This is My Country, Too."

For supplementary readings, students may choose biographies of scientists, artists, athletes and public figures.

For Younger Pupils. In the Middle School, seventh graders will have a new unit called "Family Albums." Through film strips like "Anthony Lives in Watts" and books like "Cheaper by the Dozen" they will see what tremendous variety there is in American families and where and how they live.

Pupils in seventh grade may read part of Marian Anderson's autobiography, or "Henry 3," the story of a suburban boy who questions his family's values. And perhaps they will use the "Family Profile" — a chart with space for information about every member of the family under study: his aspirations and health, his race and hobbies, and the one thing that's most important to him.

Family backgrounds of Martin Luther King Jr. and James Earl Ray, of Robert Kennedy and Sirhan Sirhan may be examined and compared and the student will write in detail about his own family and learn what other students have to say about their families.

In the primary grades, Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Tamashir developed a program for their classes in social studies, in art, music and the dance.

Birthdays of famous black Americans, for example, have been incorporated into a calendar for elementary-school children. "Black Americans We Should Know is another new list, with names on it as diverse as those of Ralph Bunche and "Deadeye Dick,

For the future, the committee recommends appointment of a standing committee concerned with the broad applications of the term "human relations," so that areas like personnel policy in the schools, or community-school relations can be discussed, as well as curriculum matters.

And committee members are anxious and eager to discuss their summer's work with the rest of the faculty, so that all teachers will feel involved and sympathetic.

PIPELINE PAYS $18,000

For Township Easement. Transcontinental Pipeline has paid Princeton Township $18,000 for the right-of-way and easement it needs for the new 42 inch line through Township owned Open Space lands in the Herrontown Woods area.

Township Committee accepted Transco's bid at Monday night's Committee meeting, and Administrator Joseph R. Nini reported that the money was already in hand.

"What assurance do we have that there will be no damage to the ecology of the area?" asked William Cherry, 24 Dempsey Avenue.

"Construction will be a rough operation," observed Committeeman Harry J. Volwieder, whose home is inches away from Transco's operation in the western part of the Township. "It will take some careful watching to see that they don't go over the property lines."

Assurance in Writing. Mr. Nini and Township attorney Gordon Griffin assured Mr. Cherry that the easement agreement bristles with safety requirements. Transco, Mr. Griffin stated, will restore the land to its original condition, remove rocks and trees dislodged by the digging and will welcome professional advice on minimizing the "ecological damage."

The company will run tests, Mr. Griffin reported, will allow observers at the tests and will turn over its radiographic reports to the Township.

Whose Sidewalk? Who should pay for repairing a sidewalk, the homeowner or the Township? The Township was about to say "the homeowner" but decided, 4-1, to talk the matter over, after a new ordinance was introduced Monday. Committeeman John Wallace was the "no" vote.

Engineer Frank Quinby said the proposed ordinance merely nailed down what is already Township policy, but the policy was disturbing to Committee, especially to Committeeman William Wilson.

"Most sidewalks are put in for public benefit and the homeowner shares the cost with us," Mr. Wilson observed, "but to make the owner pay the full cost of repair puts an additional and unending burden on the property."

Mr. Quinby estimated a cost of $10-20,000 a year to repair all sidewalks in older sections of the Township, and Mayor Carl C. Schafer remarked that these older walks were probably paid for entirely by the home-owners, in past years, without any municipal contribution at all.

The entire Shopping Center exit-entrance pattern is being studied by the Planning Board, Mr. Wallace reported, after Mr. Quinby said the Traffic Safety Committee would like a "through" designation for Terhune between 206 and Harrison.

North Harrison, Terhune, Valley Road and Center entrances are under study as an entity, Mr. Wallace said. He added that more center entrances and exits are a possibility, as well as a traffic light at the present Valley Road-Harrison entrance.

Pierco, Inc., with a low bid of $16,462, received the contract for re-surfacing various Township streets. The bid is about $600 above Mr. Quinby's estimates, but trimming here and there will bring it out even, Mr. Quinby said.

Committee tabled for study the request by Bamberger's to make Mrs. Constance Ware, 148 John Street, a Special Police Officer. She has been employed in the store's security department for five years and has worked closely with Township police, Mr. Nini reported.

Committeemen, concerned that every store might ask for a special police officer, and uncertain about who would supervise such a special officer, decided to study the question.

Shady Brook Estates' purchase of seven lots in the Van Dyke Road area from Mrs. Anne Stockton has been delayed because the Planning Board stipulated that unless neighbors would grant easements for a gravity sewer, a sewer lift station would have to be built.

William Baggitt, attorney for Shady Brook, told Committee that only one neighbor was interested, although Shady Brook offered $1,000 each to four and $5,000 each to two.

Shady Brook offered the Township $1,000 to pay for two years' maintenance on the new lift station. Committee, in executive session, decided to recommend Planning Board approval, with construction of the lift station. But Shady Brook will have to pay for more than two years' maintenance.

"Great Road East" will be the new name of the realigned portion of The Great Road. Nobody lives on it, so nobody will have to change his stationery.

The new channelization of The Great Road near Princeton Day Schools, was approved via a new ordinance. Public hearing on both, September 16.

The Township lost the "Longridge" case in state Supreme Court, and the developer now won't have to build a road outside his "Point of Woods" development. Mr. Griffin said philosophically that the municipality had learned from its "Longridge" court experience: towns do have this kind of power, the court said but it must be firmly in an ordinance.

Michael Zurov has been appointed assistant treasurer and deputy clerk of Princeton Township, replacing Fred Van Gelder who resigned in May

News Of The THEATRES

JOHN LITHGOW BACK

Will Direct for McCarter. John Lithgow, son of Arthur Lithgow, McCarter's executive director, and a director in his own right, will take charge of Shakespeare's "As You Like It," third in the new season's list of repertory plays at McCarter.

Young Mr. Lithgow is now in London in the second year of a Fulbright fellowship. A graduate of Princeton High School and of Harvard, he guided the young Great Road Players in Princeton two summers ago. He produced a highly successful "Tartuffe" at Harvard last year and acted the title role in the Moliere comedy.

According to McCarter spokesmen, Mr. Lithgow will, in a sense, commute between Princeton and London as he directs his production.

SUMMER SUCCESS

For Summer Intime. "The Trial," an adaptation of Kafka's story by Andre Gide and Jean-Louis Barrault, was the most financially successful of Summer Intime's four repertory offerings in Murray Theatre.

The company also gave Shaw's "Arms and the Man;" Tennessee Williams' "Night of the Iguana" and Giraudoux' "Amphitryon 38."

The Monday night movies played to SRO audiences almost every week. In fact, three successive film nights, with those old stand-bys "High Noon," "Bridge Over the River Kwai," and "The Mouse That Roared" were all SRO.

Summer Intime, without much capital for the required cash-in-advance for films, had to buy modestly-priced films, and these were the ones that paid off. Presumably audiences were happy to see late-late-show favorites without the cuts and the commercials.

No Red Ink. Chuck Bernstein, project manager for Summer Intime, is happily adding up big, black figures.

"We hoped for 50% attendance at the plays," he says, looking up from the ledger, "and we had between 70 and 75%. We started with about 40 contributing backers and with their contributions and our receipts, we have enough balance so we're just about certain of a season next summer."

Even program advertising broke records. During the academic year, Theatre Intime—the big brother, so to speak—gets about $200-$300 in program advertising. Summer Intime chalked up $1,100.

The company of ten even got a salary: $75 a week for ten weeks, including rehearsal weeks.

Mr. Bernstein, who was graduated from Princeton in June, his two colleagues, Geoff Peterson and Jon Lorrain, both of whom will be seniors, are particularly happy about the financial and artistic success of "The Trial."

"We took a chance on something a little more daring, and we were successful," Mr. Bernstein says. "This means we'll think in terms of more plays like this for next year."

VERDI TO BE SUNG

With Menotti, Saint Saëns. Scenes from three operas will be given this Saturday by singers from the Princeton Opera Association in Trenton's Columbia Park at 8:30.

Virginia Cole of Princeton will sing Amelia and S. T. Kimbrough will be Renato, in a scene from Verdi's "Masked Ball." Marshall M. Glatzer, Cantor of Har Sinai Temple in Trenton, will sing Samson and Nancy Jackson Delilah, in the second act of "Samson and Delilah." Arthur Llyd will sing the High Priest. The program will conclude with Menotti's "The Telephone," sung by Mary Ecroyd and Mr. Kimbrough.

Igor Chicagov is musical director and accompanist, and Jack McCullough is in charge of lighting. Mrs. Ecroyd and Joseph Amari have supervised the costumes. Donald Ecroyd will be narrator.

WHERE IS IT DARK?

At the Top of the Stairs. "The Dark at the Top of the Stairs," William Inge's drama about a family living in Oklahoma during the oil boom of the '20's, will be given this Friday and Saturday at Washington Crossing State Park by the Langhorne Players.

The setting of the play is the Playhouse and Brunswick

Petulia (now playing) has all the trappings of a far-out film — realistic blood and gore, rock singers, psychedelic effects, a hippy or two on a trip — but it is quite conventional in plot and characters. Of course, there is that scene in the restaurant with topless waitresses where the two physicians go for lunch only because the stew served is good.

Julie Christie is Petulia, who shakes her rich bridegroom of six months (Richard Chamberlain) in favor of a doctor, George Scott. She turns up where and when Scott least expects her — outside the operating room or even when he's out with his steady date.

The pace of the film is swift and jerky. There are many flash-backs and cut-ins, making the story a tough one to follow. The color is sharp and clear, which is all to the good for Christie's blue eyes. Scott, though competent, seems to fall somewhat short as a romantic lead for the mercurial and incomprehensible Petulia Christie.

GARDEN and PRINCE

For the Love of Ivy (now playing) is a situation comedy contrasting over-charming Poitier and inept whites. It is the first film by Palomar Pictures International, subsidiary of American Broadcasting Company.

Abbey Lincoln is "Ivy," a maid in a Long Island household who panics the family when she announces that she is leaving to go to secretarial school. The family youngsters are a hippie played extremely well by Beau Bridges, son of actor Lloyd Bridges, and a more conventional daughter acted by Lauri Peters. They plot to acquire a boyfriend for Ivy, in hopes that will make her happy and lead her to stay on the job.

They pick Poitier, a truck-ing executive, who is divorced and not about to try again. Ivy and Poitier wind up in bed in his palatial Harlem duplex on their second date. Ivy goes home to pack and move out, and finds the household in total disorder without her.

Negroes have long been bitter about their image in the theatre. Whites have come off poorly in this offering. The Negroes are competent, attractive and intelligent; the whites are stupid, inept and dull.

There are three songs: "You Put It On Me" sung by B. B. King, a great blues singer; "My Side of the Sky," sung by Cashman Pistilli, and the title song, sung by Shirley Horn.

Oppenheimer Play to Open

A play based on the account of the Atomic Energy Commission's fourth hearing in 1954, which declared the late J. Robert Oppenheimer to be a security risk, will open March 6, 1969, at the Vivian Beaumont Theatre in New York.

"In The Matter of J. Robert Oppenheimer," a documentary in form only, was written by Heinar Kipphardt, a German playwright. Using a 3,000-page transcript of the hearing, Mr. Kipphardt freely blended fiction with fact and later was forced to change some names and dialogue after protests from some of the participants in the hearings.

Held at the height of the McCarthy era, the AEC ruling charged Dr. Oppenheimer, one-time director of the Institute for Advanced Study, with having "fundamental defects in his character." Nine years later he was vindicated when the AEC bestowed upon him its greatest honor, the $50,000 Fermi prize for his "outstanding contributions to theoretical physics and for his scientific and administrative leadership."

IT'S NEW To Us

SEE MY SLIP?

I'm Glad it Shows. The morning of the first day of school it won't matter if her slip shows because it will unquestionably be a Her Majesty slip from Allen's, and she'll be perfectly justified to show off the whole thing, it's that becoming.

The one with the deep square neck outlined by an even deeper band of white lace, has coral and yellow posies and their green leaves embroidered in sprigs here and there over the white. The hem is lace, of COURSE, and a ball slip and panties match.

Even more sophistication in a solid white slip with low U-cut front, built-up shoulders and lace insertions outlining the princesse seams down the front. White ribbons breeze out from a wee rose at the base of the neckline.

Well, you need a dress to wear over all this finery, and Allen's this year likes the sleek knit better than almost anything. Knits are orlon, many of them bonded, and all of them with a clean line you don't always find in clothes for little girls.

Look at this navy orlon knit with it graduated hem bands of bright red, repeated singly around the long sleeves. The neck is round and without a collar, to emphasize the narrow red V outlined on the yoke. $14, in size 6.

A similar knit is huter green with bright orange and gold in free-swinging bands around the hem. Tabs at the neckline are the same colors, and here again there is no bothersome collar.

School crossing guards can see her coming a mile away when she wears the laminated orlon knit in narrow stripes of lime! lemon! orange! pink! navy! royal! grey!. A low and narrow lime-green belt keeps it all from flying away. This one has a collar, turnover style, and the short sleeves.

Older sister wears Allen's size 12 in diagonal stripes of navy and red, interrupted here and there with yellow. A wide band of navy rims the neckline, and narrow epaulets mark the shoulders.

Is she a blonde? Then she'll want the knit in narrow stripes of pink, pale blue, lime, gold and white. Look at all those brass ball buttons! Cinderella makes this one, and marks it $12.

Tricia's navy knit suit is actually a sleeveless dress with navy pleated skirt, red belt and a red-striped top. Tricia makes a red-banded navy cardigan to swing over it. $15.

But not all is knit. Smocking, beloved by generations of mothers, is always an Allen's favorite. Polly Flinders does one this year with a white smocked top under a blue Tyrolean vest, and over a skirt of full peasant print. $10.

The shirt dress comes forward in size 5, designed sternly with a button-down collar about one inch deep, and a pair of low pockets for bubblegum. Blue stitching on orange.

Separate skirts at Allen's begin with size 4, and grow from there, in corduroy, plaid or solid.

Danskin will be alone soon, Allen's hopes, with a batch of jumpers — new to Danskin this year. Pullovers and slacks will match, in sizes 3 to 6x.

On the boys' side, once we've stocked up on Nehru shirts, we reach for those wonderful permanent-press slacks. In tawny colors, they are priced at $7 and $8 and sized up to size 20.

Corduroy is no-iron, too, in thick-'n-thin or narrow wale and virile colors like deep bronze, gold, olive or navy. These are $6 and $7.

When cold weather comes, he'll wear his navy C.P.O. jacket. Or the fisherman-knit sweater, in turtle or crew-neck styles.

And for dress, Allen's shows softly muted sports jackets in shadowy gold or bronzy plaids and a grey-blue Glen plaid. Sports jackets are $20 to $27, depending on how broad his shoulders are.

NEW! AT HINKSON'S

Typewriters, etc. You can pick up a back-to-school Royal typewriter now at Hinkson's, for as little as your monthly allowance (assuming you get a pretty darned good allowance).

Typewriters are new at Hinkson's this fall. (Look at that Royal electric, if you really want a TYPEWRITER). The stationery store has lined them up in a brand new back room about 20 by 35 feet in size, a room with nice green wall-to-wall carpeting and warm wood paneling — in fact, such a pleasant addition that you'll decide to move right in and make it your study.

Victor adding machines are part of the new keyboard display, incidentally.

Metal desks, from student size right up to the big executive models, are available in soft greens, tans and greys, just like the row of filing cabinets against the wall.

For days when you'd rather take notes than type, Hinkson's has a good sturdy Clic pocket pen for only 49c and refillable, and also an 18-karat gold fill pen-pencil set for $17.50, by Kreisler. Separately, the two pieces are $8.75 each.

"Touche It" (you fill in the accent on the "e") is a porous-tip pen, refillable, for $1.98 and one of the most useful things you'll pack, if you're going away to college. Dri-Mark markers are for doodlers, Hinkson's says. Colors are almost as numerous as the colors in a crayon box, in the $1.98 size, and there are just a few fewer in the $1 box.

"I just got you a big box of

Look Who's Nehru!

Your son, that's who! Dressed in the Nehru shirt from Allen's and ready for anything from seventh grade math to the girls in the 12th grade.

Nehru shirts at Allen's come from the McGregor design board. They are $4.50, permanent-press, no iron. He'll certainly want the one in suave gold. You'll want him to have the navy because it won't show the dirt, and his best girl will squeal if she sees him in that heavenly copen because it just matches his eyes . . .

The Nehrus are sized like regular shirts, by neck and sleeve length.

crayons for our trip!," exploded a mother to her small son. He reached up to the Hinkson shelf and said, "Yes, but this box has 64 an a built-in sharpener!"

And how can you enter second grade without 64 crayons and a sharpener?

Well, back to older brother. He's bought the stop watch and a new Timex, and a new Tensor lamp.

Older sister has picked up the Cantrece nylons for $1.99, that Rand McNally wall map, 37 by 34 inches for only $1 and the handsome little dark brown cork bulletin board for $2.

Mother? She bought the Eaton writing pads for 59c, the ones in Hot Orange, Hot Lime or Hot Turquoise so that it just might be fun to write home.

CALLING THE CLANS

To Landau's. Before you look at the authentic, British-Isles kilt imports on the Landau rack, decide which shades you want in the new and exclusive "Hold Ups," also from England.

These are thigh height stockings that stay up like skin and feel as comfortable as panty-hose. Unlike panty-hose, of course, they don't have to be tossed out completely if one leg gets a run. You can buy two pairs and get the equivalent of three pairs just as you can with regular stockings.

Landau is terribly excited about the fit and the stay-upness and the no-bag, and the $2, non-run or sheer, price.

Now you can look at kilts.

"Dress Macleod" is sharp lemon with black, and Landau has the lemon or black long-sleeved mock or turtle neck sweater to match, match, match. Kilt is $13.98 — and aren't they all! — and pullover is $11.98 in sizes three (3!) to 16.

If you're the sombre type, you'll choose the "Hunting Macneil" in dark blue and dark green with a daring yellow and white line. Here again, Landau has the co-ordinate pullover in the Macleod color you want.

"Hunting Green Barclay" is an unusual tartan you won't find on just anybody on campus. It's bright green with navy and red, and so sassy and bright you may not think at first that it's authentic, but it is.

Moving out of the highlands, we find Landau's wool dirndl rack. Beige stripes, in varying shades of beige, go around one dirndl skirt, and you can match it with wool or orlon sweaters, in crew or V-neck, turtle or cardigan cut.

We like the great big houndstooth, snarling but gentle as a puppy at heart. It's black, tan, grey and ivory in a nice autum mix.

Basic girls need that A-line skirt in solid colors, with its nice seam detail and matching turtleneck. How about "Colonial rust?" There's a commentary on early American iron-work.

These basic skirts come in bankers' grey, also known as "send-me-my-allowance" grey, camel, black, navy and a lovely soft green, too innocent to be "sage."

Wranglers! You'd think they didn't wear anything else on campus. Landau has Wrangler skirts in $4 and $5 denims and corduroys, done up in wheat, navy (that's a nice new light navy) or green (that's a nice, new light green). Corduroys are teal blue, rust, navy, bronze, brown and gold.

And are the jeans piled high! No-irons, thick-'n-thin cords, narrow wale and some unusual dark prints ready for autumn. One looks exactly like a tweedy-plaid.

Landau estimates, using the most advanced computer techniques, a total of 14 colors in narrow-wale corduroy slacks. Prices go like this: $4.98 for thin wale; $5.98 for prints and thick-'n-thin; $6.98 for no-irons and only $3.98 for that ole basic denim.

These slacks come in sum (that's us); regular (that's you) and stretch (that's for Sally who REALLY ought to lose ten pounds . . .)

On the Landau jumper rack is a size three (we HATE people who wear size three) and at the other end of the rack, a size 20. These are really basics, but in the most wonderful autumn colors! Autumn red, hunter green, leaf brown, haze grey, and all done with nice seaming, and so much care you can wear them sleeveless and dressed up, (not only as a jumper over a shirt.

Remember those summer cotton dresses you bought at Landau's by the basket-ful? Here they are, translated into sleeveless wools, with that little pointy collar you loved, and a lovely apple-sage tweed, or brown.

The pea jacket, solemn navy blue, can be worn with Landau's imported tartan classic . . . Landau's shirts, in stripes or solids or tattersalls at $4.98 and $5.98, can be worn with anything (look at that wine red! the navy! the hunter green!) . . . the striped turtlenecks in cotton or nylon ($4.98 to $8) can be worn and worn, with slacks and skirts and probably even with pajamas. The stripes are narrows, or narrow and wide mixes.

Are you junior petite? If you are, Landau is waiting for you with the best-looking little shirt dress in solid, or in early American print. Some have button-down shirt collars, others have that round collar with the pointed look — you know. $9.98 in cotton, and most endearing.

to start his own firm. Mr Zuzov holds a master's degree in business administration, and was formerly business manager for the New Jersey Educat on Association.

PRINCETON IS "FIRST" With State Help. A new pilo program in "Occupations" — not just "vocations" — will reach out this year to all students at Princeton High School.

The program is not only new to P.H.S., it is so new there is nothing like it anywhere in New Jersey.

The state's Department of Labor and Industry, whose director is Raymond F. Male of Princeton, is paying the full salary of a full-time occupational guidance counsellor for Princeton High School.

The counsellor is a benign, happy, smiling man named Stanley Stein, and students can say "hello" to Mr. Stein by opening the door of the high school guidance offices.

Guidance For All. "We want to respond to the needs and desires of the students," Stein explains — he likes the editorial "we" instead of "I".

"Our program is flexible enough to bend to student needs. We want to involve the whole school — not just the students who will enter the work world right after high school — that's why we say 'occupational' instead of vocational."

Mr. Stein's prime concern is to see how the Department of Labor and Industry can support Princeton High's guidance program. He will start off this fall by meeting with students and teachers in the high school's four vocational programs: "Distributive Education" (merchandising); the "Trade and Industry" work study courses; "Power Mechanics" and the special education classes.

A lot of his work in this field will be just that: work in the field. He will be in and around Princeton, talking with store-owners and corporation executives, building up more and more placement opportunities for boys and girls in the existing vocational courses.

Mr. Stein's foot work will serve a double purpose: it will free the teachers in these subjects so they can teach, and not have to spend time visiting businessmen to line them up as participants in the work study courses.

"We hope to have a formal class in "Occupations," Mr. Stein says, "we'll use the McGraw Hill series of 100 tapes, which are interviews with employers on the job."

"For example, you'll hear a bricklayer describe his job. You'll hear a computer-programmer talk about his work — like that. Then we'll cycle the kids into half a dozen firms in the area, so they can see what different jobs are like."

Tell Me. "Another thing" — and he leans forward with an eager smile, "we'd like to have Seminars, where students can listen to experts talk about things like union apprenticeships, payroll deductions, your income tax, how to buy your first car after you've got a job, what compensation you get if you're hurt on the job."

"And role playing, too. We want to show youngsters how to fill out application blanks and how to be interviewed. Then we'll get some kids to play the part of the employment manager, so they can see what it's like to be an executive with an employment problem."

For a minute, Mr. Stein is silent. Then a shy smile — "Yo-Cats," he says, trying it out.

"How about a group called the 'Yo-cats' — a group of kids who might do the planning for these occupational seminars? But that's just my name for them — they'd have to think up their own name."

"YES" Comes In. As one of the adults who set up YES — the Youth Employment Service — Mr. Stein will turn to the Service for part-time jobs when students need them. He hopes to use the Trenton office of the New Jersey State Employment Service as a source for full-time jobs for drop-outs.

Mr. Stein plans to administer to students the General Aptitude Test Battery, plus some experimental tests. In the past, he points out, General Aptitudes have been given in the spring of senior year — "when it's too late! By administering them early in a student's high school years, we can give him more motivation for study and a sharper appreciation of how much education means, in terms of a career."

Students will be referred to Mr. Stein by their assigned guidance counsellors but they can come in on their own, too.

He expects to talk to youngsters who are going to college, and youngsters who are not, advising on job opportunities as they are today, and as they may be four years from now.

Mr. Stein was in the Labor and Industry Department until five years ago. Then he

Students of All Ages Seek High School Diploma

Adult School Equivalency Course in 2nd Year

WHEN ADULTS GO TO SCHOOL . . . In the Princeton Adult School's High School Equivalency Course, adults can pick up high school where they dropped it years ago, and work toward that high school diploma. George Petrillo, of Princeton High's guidance department, is the guiding spirit behind the adult course.

"If the old brain will work I hope something strikes!"

More than one "old brain and quite a few young and still untried brains will strike sparks again this fall when the Princeton Adult School opens the second year of its High School Equivalency Course.

(See Town Topics Adult School curriculum adve tisement, issue of September 12.)

The quotation above comes from one of several brief themes written by students who studied in last year's Equivalency course.

In 1967-68, 32 adults ranging in age from 19 to the "late 50s" took English, mathematics, social studies and science, working toward the goal of a high school diploma.

". . . subjects have changed since years back when I was in high school. I have learn many new ways of figuring out a problem. I have found it most interested and enjoyable at the same time."

One pupil had been an eighth grade dropout. One was a foreign-born teacher in the University's graduate College, a man with a PhD who took the course so he could observe teaching methods in America.

There was a Negro mother who had dropped out in 1951 and was now able to go back. There were half a dozen Irish girls employed as domestics in Princeton homes, who wanted a bit of American education.

"This is an opportunity to help you help yourself in whatever you have in mind and it is a wonderful opportunity for not only the young but the old also."

George Petrillo, head of the guidance department at Princeton High School, directs the High School Equivalency program for the Princeton Adult School.

Classes meet in the evening at Princeton High School along with other Adult School classes and are taught by Princeton High School teachers.

The state suggests the amount of time to spend in various areas: 10% on spelling for example, 11% on the Civil War.

Students are specifically taught so they can pass the New Jersey high school equivalency examination. "We teach for that exam," Mr. Petrillo says. Students may take the state's exam any time they feel they are ready. So far, two have taken and passed it. One, age 19, has already been admitted to college.

Last year, the four required courses were given two and two, so a pupil had to sign up for fall and spring semesters to get everything in.

This year, Mr. Petrillo hopes there will be enough demand so he can offer all four courses in each semester. It depends how many students register.

"It's fun to be in school again!"

That comment came from a housewife who dropped out of school 32 years ago, and decided last year to go back and get that high school diploma.

"The real value of the course is what the students them selves put into it," Mr. Petrillo observes. "They are eager for outside assignments and even though all the work is voluntary, of course, everyone hands in his homework!"

The courses are very basic. Teachers gear the class to the slowest member and work individually with the fast ones, suggesting a wide range of outside assignments.

Mr. Petrillo assembled his first classes last year by writing over 300 letters — to every Princeton High dropout in the past ten years!

He also wrote to business firms suggesting that they pay tuition for promising employees who need that diploma to get ahead.

Attendance throughout the year was higher than the average Adult School attendance. But what pleases Mr. Petrillo most - no dropouts!

"The atmosphere of the classroom has been a delight in that it has been a return to a center of enthusiasm and desire to communicate information. The desire to share knowledge is a wonderful gift and I have learned a little, at least, simply by attending. . . ."

took the suggestion home to Mr. Male . . ." Mr. Stein muses.

left to teach commercial art, mechanical drawing and general science at Trenton's Junior High Two. Last year, he was on the guidance staff at St. Anthony High School in Trenton.

The state's involvements in P.H.S. guidance grew out of conversations among Mrs. Raymond F. Male, who was president of the high school P.T.A.; Principal Kenneth Michael and George Petrillo, head of the guidance department.

"I rather think Mrs. Male

Both were members of Mrs. Smith's 9th grade English class at Miss Fine's School which included a unit in playwriting. Their assignment was a dramatize a fairy tale for children's theatre. Mrs. Smith edited their plays and gives both credit in her book. She also forwards royalty checks.

Mrs. Smith was director of the Princeton Community Players for many years, directing a children's unit that worked in creative drama and also produced many plays before the public. Her first book, "Plays and How to Put Them On" was published in 1961.

Both texts are filled with imaginative plays and simplified methods of production, a bonanza for teachers seeking way to enlarge the capabilities of their students.

"HUMAN RELATIONS Is More What It Is!" The sex education programs being studied for inclusion in the schools have brought a growing feeling that "Sex Ed." is a misnomer.

"We need a better title than sex education," Headmaster Douglas O. McClure of Princeton Day School remarked this summer. "Family Life? Human relations. Is more what it is."

A group of PDS parents, faculty and trustees held meetings last year on sex education at the school, calling themselves the "What'sit Committee."

The problem is that to the various study committees, human sexuality begins at birth, ends only at death, and its role in shaping lives, careers, relationships is so dynamic that understanding must begin at a very early age. But to the outsider, the parent uninvolved in earnest PTA meetings, sex education is only concerned with the sex act and contraception.

It was a group of Princeton physicians, led by Dr. Frances Arthur, who first met two years ago in grave concern over the tragedies they saw in Princeton arising from ignorance of the whole field of human sexuality. Ministers, church laymen, professionals and housewives in growing numbers joined ranks with them, holding study units weekly.

From this developed the Princeton Area Committee on Sex Education, headed by Ralph Bloom, which is playing a quiet but profound role locally in support of the New Jersey Department of Education, the State Board of Education and the National Association of Independent Schools.

New Programs. This fall, the Princeton Regional Schools and Princeton Day Schools take new steps in this direction. At PDS, sex education, defined in the broadest terms to cover all aspects of human sexuality, is part of the entire school program.

The Regional Schools have for the first time a kindergarten through-12th grade health program developed by Norman Van Arsdalen and Mrs. Dorothea Lummis. Sex educatinn is included, along with discussions of drugs, narcotics and tobacco.

Sex education is correlated with other studies where possible, Mrs. Lummis notes, in commercial classes, biology (where human reproduction is discussed), English literature ("instead of ignoring things in 'The Scarlet Letter,'"), the home economics classes study family life, baby care and related matters.

Parents are asked to come to the schools to see the films that will be shown to their children. Some films are designed for mothers and daughters to view together.

Teacher Training. "We are hopeful that there will be a teachers workshop planned by the Area Committee on Sex Education," Mrs. Lummis says. Dr. Willard Dalrymple is the Committee's chairman for teacher education. The hope is that a two week's seminar for the teachers can be held at Princeton University in 1969.

Only two of the Regional Schools faculty have attended sex education workshops, Mrs. Betty Hewel, director of girls' physical education at Princeton High School, and Janice Mowers, Community Park Schoolnurse. Mrs. Hewel is an active member of the Area Committee.

Four of the PDS faculty have taken part in the workshops held at the University of Maryland by the National Association of Independent Schools. "We use these teachers as catalysts in any program we are developing," Mr. McClure said.

"We Urge." The PDS "What'sit Committee" came up with 21 pages of recommendations "which we are trying to implement."

Basically, the committee recommended using current courses and touching on the sex education theme in the various courses—science, English, Bible, history—all at various levels. It suggested that some of the English department texts should be appropriate for discussion of sex education themes.

In the 8th grade, the English and history departments will be dealing with certain concepts in common. One will be the changing pattern of the family. Sixth graders study human reproduction in the physiology course, which includes a film that parents preview.

In "Senior Religion," Dean Ernest Gordon of the Princeton University Chapel deals with ethical problems examined from a religious view, using Fletcher's "Situation Ethics" and several novels dealing with existential themes that are troubling the teenagers.

In kindergarten through grade 4, the committee recommended adapting the basic concepts suggested by the N.J. State Curriculum Outline, discussion of family relationships in all of the grades, breeding animals as part of the classroom situation and, in the 3rd grade, use of the slides "How Babies are Made" in conjunction with study of animals.

The 5th graders' study of anthorpology in history provides an ideal opportunity for study of differing family and tribal customs, racial differences and similarities, the committee felt. Mythology and Old Testament stories such as Bascrie and Philemon, Ruth and others, provide an opportunity for discussion of some aspects of love and loyalty.

The What'sit Committee urged that the program in human sexuality be a step in "the direction of an even wider program in physical and mental health which should be instituted eventually throughout the school."

It is also recommended inservice training of the faculty at the NAIS workshops and other institutes and through speakers at faculty meetings.

As the programs broaden the concern of a number of the adults involved is the need for more parent contact. Mrs. Lummis, who has had the assistance of Mr. McClure and Mrs. Winifred Vogt of PDS in the Regional Schools new k-12 health program, commented:

"I believe the role of the Princeton Area Committee on Sex Education is to gain more thorough parent contact. We have discussed these matters with the PTAs, but are we reaching the right people—the people who need to be informed?"

If Your Child Rides a School Bus . . .

Bus passes, descriptions of bus routes and a covering letter have been mailed to parents whose children will ride the buses to Princeton Regional Schools this year.

If you haven't gotten all this in the mail, call Ralph Bennett, 921-6292.

Children must live two miles or more from school to be eligible for a bus. High school students must live two and one-half miles, or more. Children who live on routes designated "hazardous" are allowed to ride the bus even though they live within the mileage limit.

Mr. Bennett is still honoring applications for bus travel from the parents of children going to private schools, although the technical deadline was May 1. This is the second year for private-school busing under the 1967 state law, although the rules have changed.

A public school system doesn't have to bus a private child if busing costs more than $150 a year, round trip. The school system can pay a private-school parent up to $150 a year for the transportation of his child, but the parent himself must pay anything beyond that, and arrange the transportation himself.

Something new this year: boys going to the Lawrenceville School will ride by Capital Transit buses because the School doesn't dismiss its boys until 6 p.m.

Mr. Bennett has been working full-time on transportation logistics since July 1. Does he have help? One part-time secretary.

POST OFFICE PERSISTS

Says Building Will Be Built. The United States Post Office Department announced this week that it will "acquire" a new Princeton post office building on North Harrison Street north of Terhune Road, and then "abandon" the Palmer Square post office.

The building will be constructed under the department's Lease Construction Program, said Postmaster General W. Marvin Watson, thereby keeping the building on the local tax rolls.

Plans, specifications, and bidding forms will be made available to prospective bidders at an early date, Mr. Watson said.

Township Baffled. All this is news to Princeton Township. The Township, has been taken to court by the Thanet Corporation, 190 Nassau, owner of the five-acre North Harrison "post office" plot because the Township Zoning Board refused Thanet a special permit last year for a post office on that site.

The case will eventually come before Judge Clifton C. Bennett of Superior Court, but a date hasn't even been set. One of the questions Judge Bennett has been asked to decide is whether the post office department is subject to a ruling by a local zoning board.

Last week, Congressman Frank Thompson's office in Washington announced that the post-office department had signed a 20 year lease for the land at $5,000 a year.

Under the Lease Construction plan, whoever wins the bid could either construct the post office and lease it to the government, or sell it to someone who would lease it. The Township could then collect taxes on the building.

If the post office department condemned the land outright — which it rarely does — then the federal government would own land and building, and the local government would receive nothing in taxes.

No Palmer Square? About "abandoning" the Palmer Square post office Postmaster John L. Dilworth says he is shaken by the word. Federal officials have alway said that the Palmer Square post office would be kept as a "finance station," where people could buy stamps and maintain private post office boxes, as now. The Annex on University Place, has always been scheduled for abandonment when a new building is built.

Mr Dilworth queried his regional Philadelphia office on that word "abandon," and he says they don't know anything about it.

CAR KILLS 3 CHILDREN

In Roosevelt. Three children playing by the side of a street in Roosevelt were struck and killed by a car at about 2:20 Monday afternoon. They were pronounced dead at 2:40 by a Hightstown physician.

Killed were Kurt Shmalzbach, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Schmalzbach, 2 Cedar Court; Kelley B. Hughes, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Minor L. Hughes Jr., 24 Pine Drive; and Susan Weinberger, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Weinberger, 26 Tamara Drive.

Mrs. Ella A. Frank, 49, of 18 Tamara Drive, the driver and lone occupant of the car, was treated for shock at Princeton Hospital and released. State Police from Troop C at Hightstown said the children were playing on Pine Drive near the Hughes' home, when Mrs. Frank's car left the road and struck them.

Trooper Robert D. Pongrac could not determine the cause of the accident. He said there were no skid marks found on the road, but that tire tracks indicated the car had run on the grass about 1½ to 2 feet from the edge of the two-lane street. It appeared that one of the children was palying in a storm drain and the other two were on the grass between the drain and the sidewalk, he reported.

Trooper Pongrac also stated that the car had dragged a tricycle more than 200 feet. The car, which was impounded by the police pending an inspection by a state mechanic, was slightly damaged.

State police report that Mrs. Frank will be formally charged with death by auto and careless driving. When they questioned her, she was unable to recall what happened at the time of the accident.

HOPEWELL YOUTH KILLED

In Crash Near Toms River. Paul Cranstoun, 15 of Hopewell Woodsville Road, was killed Saturday when the sports car in which he was riding struck a safety island in a traffic circle near Toms River and overturned several times, pinning him underneath. He was pronounced dead at Community Memorial Hospital following the 2:40 a.m. accident.

The driver, James D. Allen, 17, of 9 Center Street, Hopewell, suffered minor bruises and was treated and released at the hospital. Dover Township police said his car was traveling west on Morris Boulevard when it ran on the island and overturned twice.

A student at Hopewell Central High School, Cranstoun was a member of Boy Scout Explorer Troop 141, and the First Presbyterian Church of Hopewell.

He is survived by his parents, William M. and Elizabeth K. Cranstoun; a brother, Peter W. Cranstoun; a sister, Mrs. Richard Van Gulik of Pennington, and his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Cranstoun of Hamilton Square.

The service was held at the Cromwell Memorial Home, Hopewell, the Rev. Robert Neringer of the First Presbyterian Church, officiating. Burial will be in Highland Cemetery.

TWO PRINCETONIANS DIE

In Florida Car Accident. Two Princeton boys died in a Florida automobile accident last week as they skidded on a rain-slicked highway near Pensacola and collided with an oncoming car, whose driver also died.

Alexander C. Roberts, 19, and Owen W. Roberts, Jr., 13, lived with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Roberts, 32 Hodge Road, while their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Roberts, were in Upper Volta, Africa. Their father was on an assignment for the U.S. Department of State.

According to relatives, the Roberts family had recently moved to Birmingham, Ala., where Mr. Roberts was assigned to the War College, after the parents had returned from Africa.

Police said the accident occurred as the boys were returning to Birmingham, 290 miles from Pensacola, after a day at the beach. The road surface was slippery after rain during the day.

Alexander Roberts was to have entered Princeton University in September. Owen was a student at St. Paul's

CAN TRAP ROCK EXPAND?

Residents Hope Not. "How can you allow Kingston Trap Rock to expand when we've been waiting so long for you to control it?"

The question was the hard core of a meeting last Thursday night in Kingston called by the Kingston Home-owners Association to protest a Franklin Township zoning ordinance amendment which would enlarge the township's industrial zone so that Trap Rock could expand by more than 55 acres.

Final vote by the Franklin Township Council is scheduled for this Thursday night at the town hall in Middlebush; however Mayor Bruce Williams and Councilman Leonard Vliet told the audience that Council would consider postponement of the vote at its agenda session this Tuesday.

More than 75 persons, members of the homeowners group and non-member residents of the area, filled the Laurel Avenue School auditorium to address sharp comments to Michael Stavola, owner of Kingston Trap Rock, Mayor Williams; Councilmen and Robert Piery, former mayor of Franklin and former employee of Trap Rock who is now an independent contractor.

Mr. Stavola told the audience that Trap Rock's taxes have jumped from $15,000 to $46,000 a year, and he estimated a total of $100,000 a year in taxes to Franklin if the quarry can expand.

Replying to a question, he said the company wants to extend its operations to the land across Route 518 as part of a future development pattern.

Major complaints against Trap Rock:

Dust. Mr. Stavola proposes to build a 30-acre spring fed lake across the road from "Rockingham," George Washington's headquarters. He said this would provide more water for dust control.

Blasting. One home-owner said he had installed five ceilings in his house over the years. Another listed his cracked windows.

Noise. Residents protested heavy truck volume 24 hours a day, and several spoke of bulldozers and trucks operating all night.

Residents charged that state standards for air pollution and blasting were not being met. One charged that Council had been told "repeatedly" about violations and had done nothing about them.

Another resident reported that her direct complaints to the Trap Rock office had not been answered.

Mr. Piery suggested that if Trap Rock were denied the right to expand, it might dig deeper into the ground, there-

YES, I'm Pleased!

Town Topics did such a marvelous write-up of my little shop and sent some people to see me that I'm most pleased. And when they called to tell me of the Back-to-School issue, I said yes, include me in!

I do have some interesting things for the college-bound. I would particularly recommend the beautiful Hand-knit Sweaters from Iceland, or the handsome sheepskins — all in natural colors. Also available are posters and prints for the wall. In addition there are lots of little goodies to please the young!

Browsers always welcome! Don't be put off by the size of the store — I'll be in larger quarters by Oct. 1.

by endangering the level of the water table.

Trap Rock is a non-conforming use in a Residential-Agricultural zone. One resident said Council promised, when Trap Rock crossed Laurel Avenue some years ago, that no rezoning or further expansion would be permitted.

The company and Council also came under fire because Trap Rock has built a 150-foot tower on top of the Route 518 hill. One speaker charged that the tower violated FAA rules and was a hazard to planes headed for Princeton Airport. Mr. Stavola said the tower replaced an old one "demolished before my time," and he admitted the company had not obtained Township approval to build the new one.

TOWNSHIP SAYS NO

To Continuing Squibb Suit. Princeton Township has decided to proceed no further in its suit against Lawrence Township, in which it challenged the zoning ordinance permitting E.R. Squibb & Sons to build its research - administrative complex on Route 206 and Province Line Road.

Administrator Joseph R. Nini reported Monday night that the Fred Stickel III, attorney for the Township in the matter, had strongly recommended that the suit not be carried further. Township attorney Gordon Griffin concurred.

Mr. Nini commented that the Township did gain some experience out of the case which could prove beneficial in the future.

For example, Judge George Barlow pointed out that if Princeton, Lawrence and Hopewell Townships had purely residential rural zoning in this area, it is doubtful Squibb could have been brought in. However, all three have non-residential uses in this area, thus decreasing the impact of Squibb. This brings Regional Planning into sharp focus, Mr. Nini observed.

The Township's action leaves only the North Lawrence Citizen's Association left in the ring. William G. LaTourette, the organization's president, said the group would not reach a decision on the matter until it had met with its attorneys.

$1,000 STEREO STOLEN

From Viking Furniture. A rosewood hi-fi stereo set valued at $1,000 was stolen last week from Viking Furniture, 259 Nassau Street. The theft was discovered Thursday morning.

Chief Peter J. McCrohan reported that the thief or thieves had used a ladder to cut a hole in the ceiling of the boiler room and then lower themselves into the interior of the store by a rope. Exit was by a side door.

Detectives Robert McAvenia and Charles Harris are investigating.

In the Township, police report the theft of six to eight tires from Pete and Mike's Mobil Station, 176 Bayard Lane.

The rear of a tire rack outside the garage was cut open by metal shears and the metal bent back. The tires were valued at $180.

Police said that two or three tires were left behind which apparently were not the size the thief wanted. Pfc. William R. Potts investigated the theft which occurred between 10 last Wednesday evening and 7 the following morning.

Two half kegs of beer worth $21.50 each and a $1 metal tub were taken sometime between Thursday and Saturday morning from the main building of the Squatters Club on Quaker Road. Harry J. Wright III, 24 Linden Lane, reported the theft.

Police said that the front door of the building had been forced to gain entry and then a rear door to the room where the beer was stored. Some tubing was also taken.

TRENTON PAIR CHARGED

With Shoplifting. Two Trenton women were arrested for shoplifting last week in Bamberger's Department Store in the Princeton Shopping Center.

Henrietta Carroll, 28, and Margaret Wade, 20, were arraigned before Township Magistrate Glen B. Miller, Jr. Charged with shoplifting at Bamberger's and possession of stolen articles from other stores, they were released in $1,000 bail pending a hearing this week before Magistrate Miller who will decide if there is enough evidence to bind them over for action by a Grand Jury.

Police report that they uncovered merchandise valued at $700 in the defendants' car. The articles, including women's clothing, jewelry and miscellaneous items, were allegedly taken not only from Bambergers but from stores in shopping centers in Lawrence, Ewing and Levittown, Pa.

The two women were observed in Bamberger's by Mrs. Constance Ware, the store's security officer. She trailed them out of the store, whereupon they ran to their car, locked the doors and sped off. Mrs. Ware alerted the police.

A description of the car was broadcast by police. It was spotted shortly thereafter off Nassau Street by Borough's motorcycle patrolman, Anthony Ranfone. He gave chase and managed to overhaul the car on Route 206 near the Shipetaukin Country Day School. He held them there until the arrival of Township patrolmen Olindo Carnevale and David Funk.

STUDENTS IMPROVISE SCHOOL
On Indian Reservation

The odds were against any success at all. For two weeks this summer, a dozen Princeton teenagers tried teaching school near Nazlini, on the Navajo Four Corners Reservation, about 100 miles from Gallup, New Mexico.

They had no training in teaching. They were given what some termed an "old fashioned Presbyterian Bible School" curriculum to follow. In researching the Navajo before they left Princeton, the most recent book they could find was published in 1957.

"We didn't know what were their needs," Abraham Menashe said on their return to Princeton.

Log Cabin School. The teenagers live and held school in a log cabin about 30 miles from the Presbyterian mission. Nearby was the tribal chapter house and a trading post. "For us it was very difficult . . . it took us time to settle in and get used to each other," Barbara Sullivan said later. They were the first of the young peoples' groups sponsored by the Presbyterian Church to live on the reservation.

The work unit was organized by Youth Associates, 20 Nassau, and comprised Alissa Cawley, Barbara Sullivan, Abraham Menasche, John Panzer, Tom Ford, John Provinzano, George Dyson, Gifford Mardoni, Ellen Schattsneider, Rick Davis and Dave Turner, a member of Youth Associates' staff.

They enrolled their Navajo students by driving around the dirt back roads with an interpreter, stopping at every hogan to announce the school. "The hogans are dirty, filthy," said Tom Ford. "They were six or eight-sided mud and log huts with a door and a hole in the ceiling. There were one or two beds in them for as many as 14 people . . ."

"No men between 20 and 40 came to our day school," Alissa Cawley added. "In the hogans we saw them all just lying around idle."

The young people recruited nearly 50 "students." Few spoke English. The Navajos ranged in age from toddler to the elderly. The younger women brought their infants.

There were few teenagers, the one age group the Princeton young people would best understand. "We were told that they were away in some kind of summer school in Denver," John Provinzano added.

Some mornings the little church would be filled with blue-jeaned Indian children, women in their long skirts and velveteen blouses, elderly men. Other days as few as 25 appeared.

A Smile Speaks. The language barrier troubled the Princeton young people more than any other problem, but oddly enough, it was this that put the school on its feet.

"They are so silent, so shy. You had to give so much of yourself in order to come across," Abraham says. "We felt that when they went home, they were full of what we had taught them — but they would NEVER tell us!"

With every ingenuity they could think of, the Princeton teens developed a nearly non-verbal method of teaching, improvising the curriculum each day. "The geographies we brought were the most fascinating thing to them, especially the women, even if they don't speak English," said one of the youngsters.

Barbara left materials of the tables for them to use as they wished — crayons, watercolors, clay. "The older people are very much interested in drawing the face, and if we had had a longer time, I think I could have developed that."

"We put on a couple of skits — of Bible stories, and tried experimental drama."

"The children — we tried to teach them by playing with them, singing with them. We had sports — the Navajo is very athletic."

"Abraham helped teach some of the women basic math. A couple of the kids gave music lessons . . ."

"Another thing we did was learn to sing 'Jesus Loves Me' in Navajo from their new hymnbook . . . They were very proud of their Navajo minister."

"One of the women would bring her work with her — beading and other things. It was fascinating."

"I was impressed at how much they walked. One old lady who had come 30 miles, taught us how to make fired bread — with flour, water and baking soda. They eat that three times a day. Sometimes they have lamb stew . . ."

The Serenity. One boy said, "I felt I learned so much from them and from the people there. I'd like to go back — the serenity, the beauty, the lack of competition — I thought nothing like this could exist!"

During their two weeks on the reservation, the teens repaired the log church and constructed two concrete-foundation outhouses. "The best two-seaters on the reservation!"

Several went climbing in Bear Canyon. Abraham and Dave Turner, attended a meeting in the Indian's chapter house, gleaning from it the Navajos' hope that small industry can be attracted to the reservation to provide employment.

"The reservation is a world of its own," one girl said. "When their people return from the outside — and a lot of their boys are serving in Vietnam — they go through a cleansing ritual at a prayer meeting in the chapter house.

"They are Christians . . . they pray to the Lord, but also to the Wind. They have a high respect for the wind, because it can bring evil."

Indian Poverty. The Navajo live in extended family groups of up to 30 people, the Princeton teens reported. "The family is the most important thing to them. They have very young marriages."

"Most of them are on welfare — they have some crops, some cattle, but it's all subsistance life. There's no tv in the hogans, no electricity, no running water. They use public wells."

"Some of the civil rights legislation in education and welfare helps the Negro and hurts the Navajo — because the Navajo is the ward of the Government. They should have a head start program on the reservation because they have to learn English."

"A lot of them live in the border towns — which are between cultures. There is a lot of drinking in the border towns. One girl I talked to said she would not marry a Navajo because they drink too much and eat peyote."

A teenager, mindful of the smiling, silent Navajo students, said, " I think they are a happy people. There was interest in what we were doing. The adults especially are interested in getting the children exposed to get them ahead."

"I wouldn't say they are happy. They have accepted great hardship," said another.

All but one of the Princeton teens came home after two weeks. They have received letters from their "students" and plan to keep in touch. "We'd like to go back if we could be involved in some project that we thought was worthwhile."

The last to return was Ellen Schattsneider. "She was training a horse for a Navajo family."

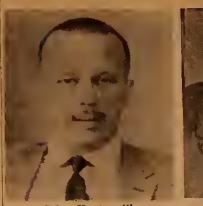
PHS Has New Plans for 9th Graders



John Houtenville

Donald Blankenbush

"Hi, Nellie — anything I can do to help?" Or, in a sterner vein, "Hey, Alan, why are you out in the hall?"

Individualized attention from "somebody who knows my name" is the goal of Princeton High School's new "unit plan" for ninth graders who will enter the door on September 4.

It used to be called a "house plan," but the phrase brings a shudder to Principal Kenneth Michael. It will go like this: the 400 new 9th graders, fresh from Middle School, will be divided into two 200-pupil units, each with its own director — John Houtenville the math teacher, or Donald Blankenbush, the history teacher.

These two men will be "principals" of their small "schools," with a principal's complete authority. They will work with teachers and guidance counsellors, handle attendance records and take care of discipline. There's only one thing they can't do: suspend a pupil. That's Principal Michael's job.

I Know Who You Are! With only 200 students at hand, each ninth-grade principal can say "hello" by name. He can learn who has what problems. He can talk knowledgeably with a teacher about any pupil in his unit. He can, in short, give individual attention.

The idea is that ninth graders, most of whom are about 14 years old, are quite different from twelfth graders, who are men and women of 18, on the threshold of college.

Ninth-graders, awed by a huge and teeming new school, need to be sure somebody cares. They need restrictions they may not need later. For example: no ninth grader is allowed to smoke unless he has the written permission of his parents. For example: every ninth-grader needs a study hall time when he can do his home work.

The twelfth-grader does not need these restrictions and will probably work better and be happier without them. So this year, for the first time, the study hall requirement is being dropped for twelfth-graders. They can go or not, as they choose.

Ninth-grade units will be self-contained in home room, study hall, English and possibly in some other classes. This means that most of the boys and girls the ninth-graders see will be members of their own 200-pupil unit.

If the plan works in this, its first year, it will be extended to tenth grade, so there will be four 200-pupil units in 1969-70. It will not be used in 11th and 12th grades, Mr. Michael said.

The principal points out that the new plan will free Miss Florence Burke, J. Alfred Seitz and Joseph V. Drulis, the assistant principals, so that they can give more time and attention to upperclassmen.

The two unit directors will continue to teach, with the same class load — three classes — as a department chairman.

The new "unit" plan was developed by Mr. Michael, Allen R. Kirschner, chairman of the English department, and Superintendent Philip E. McPherson.

NEW COURSES READY

In Chemistry, Languages. A new course in chemical technology for high school students who want to be lab. technicians will be offered for the first time this fall at Princeton High School.

The school will also offer three new courses in modern foreign languages.

"Chemical Technology" is designed for the student who doesn't plan to go to college, and who would like a career in a chemistry laboratory.

The American Chemical Society is keenly interested in supporting courses of this kind, explains P.H.S. Principal Kenneth Michael. The Society will lend the high school some laboratory apparatus, will provide as many visiting lecturers as the teacher wants, and will open the doors of industrial plants to student visitors.

Lee Pisauro will teach the course, and act as co-ordinator with the American Chemical Society.

The recent European sabbatical of Frank Soda, language teacher at Princeton High, has resulted in two new courses which Dr. Soda will teach.

They are "French Civilization" and "Spanish Civilization," and although they are open only to students with considerable proficiency in the languages, they are not wholly language courses but are concerned with broad cultural and historic developments.

The high school, which started to offer Italian two years ago, will offer its first third-year Italian course this year.

HORIZONS WIDEN

For PDS Students. One of the dynamics of Princeton is the willingness of its residents to be resources for the schools. Professors, hairdressers, plant managers, writers, housewives, artist mechanics, college students have enthusiastically joined in an extraordinary variety of school projects.

They have supported and often helped pioneer school programs ranging from New Math, language study and released time jobs to career guidance and correcting English papers. The most recent in the long series of collaborations occurred last spring at Princeton Day School in an experiment with the seniors that will be repeated this year by student demand.

Eight members of the intellectual community were invited by Headmaster Douglas O. McClure to give a series of seminars on the developments of the next 25 years and their effect upon the seniors' lives.

Professor Cyril E. Black discussed international politics and changing ideologies, Robin Fox spoke on the changing role of the male and Mrs. Herbert Kendall on the changing role of the female.

Changing Enviroment. Robert Guttman talked about patterns of urbanization and their affect upon man's environment. Professors Keeley and Turner addressed themselves to changes in culture, literature, music and the arts. Professor Marion Levy spoke on changes in the problems of poverty and affluence. And Professor John Bonner discussed developments in medicine and science.

The final session was devoted to changes in occupations and what the young people might expect in the years ahead — a discussion led by Wilbert E. Moore.

Faculty Courses. Adding to the intedllectual feast were six seminars offered by the PDS faculty: "Existentialism" given by George V. Packard was over-subscribed and the students had to draw lots. Mrs. Anne B. Shepherd gave two seminars, one on Henry James and another titled "Identity and Anxiety."

Mr. McClure held a seminar on civil disorder, using the Koerner Committee report as a basis. Mrs. Winfree gave two seminars, "Human Brain, Physiology of Psychology" and "Human Birth, Embryology and Related Social Issues."

The seminars were held during the last three weeks of school. There were no regular classes and the seniors were free to come and go. They were not expected to be in school except to attend a seminar or to work on a special project.

All seniors were required to attend the seminar series on change. They could choose two faculty seminars or one faculty seminar and an independent work project with a faculty adviser. As a third alternative, they could devote their full time to two work projects.

"Great!" We asked the senior class to evaluate the seminar program," Mr. McClure relates. "They were enthusiastic, they felt that three weeks was not enough and suggested four or five weeks in 1968-69. They all commented that they were doing more reading than they might have done otherwise . . . One of the senior complaints was that they wanted suggestions for research reading into the seminar subject.

"The teacher response," he added, "was great. All of us wished we had more time."

The seminar program was first discussed last year by Mr. McClure as a possible way to make the senior year more meaningful. For many college-bound students, it seems a wasted year.

The seniors themselves wanted a chance to explore new areas of study or to delve more deeply into one particular field. They asked to work intensively over a short period, rather than for a semester.

Working Together. As the idea took shape, the faculty were invited to list what they would like to offer in a seminar, and the students were encouraged to go to the faculty and ask for a seminar in a special field.

"WE SPENT A LOT OF TIME talking to the seniors about the seminar idea when they were juniors," Headmaster Douglas O. McClure says of the pilot "senior seminars" held at Princeton Day School in May, to be repeated next spring. Story this page.

"The Princeton community is rich in resources," Mr. McClure said gratefully. "We found all kinds of specialists who were willing to come in. They gave a 45 minute talk followed by a 45 minute discussion."

The special projects the seniors took on were as varied as the seminars. Some who were interested in teaching worked with the Lower School teachers.

A girl who always wanted to read Plato went through "The Republic" with Mr. McClure. Several tried to direct a play. ("Unfortunately, there wasn't time enough.") A group of senior boys interested in French drama read a play by Camus. Another project was to compile a book of poetry for slum children.

The senior seminars proved a heady stimulant that was more of a climax to the year than the actual graduation ceremony, judging from the seniors' enthusiasm.

Mulling over plans for next year, Mr. McClure doubts that the seminar period can be lengthened due to the fact that students take advanced placement examinations for college in the middle of May.

"We met Mondays, Wednesday and Fridays this year. Next year, I'd like to keep the same seminar topics, but cut down the seminars to twice a week. This would give the student more time for reading."

YOUTH OFFER PLANS

To Meet Guidance Needs. Three suggestions for change at Princeton High School have been developed by teenagers who attended the Youth Leadership Institute in July of Youth Associates, Inc.

The students suggest that a Guidance Counsel Committee, be formed from members of the student body. Its goal would be to take the pressure off the guidance office by having students assume tasks to

ALLOWANCES AND INFLATION: Three members of the Grover Avenue playground contingent, Frank Mazzella, Jeff Kingsley and Jonathan Diamond discuss whether or not their allowances are keeping pace with the rising cost of living and what they feel they need each week to make ends meet. (Staff Photo)

Question Of The Week

Question: Has your allowance kept pace with the increased cost of living; if not, how much do you feel you need a week?

Where asked: Grover Avenue Playground.

Frank Mazzella, 270 N. Harrison Street, 8th grader, Community Park: I know the answer — I say more. I only get 25c a week. I feel I could use about $1.25 a week, anyway. I feel I need to save money and I can't save anything on 25c a week.

Jeff Kingsley, 163 Loomis Court, 7th grader, Valley Road: I don't even get an allowance. When my grandparents come over for a visit I get some money. I save up that way. I feel I should get an allowance so I can save up for things. I'm saving for a racer now. I think I should get about 50c a week.

Jonathan Diamund, 393 Walnut Lane, 3rd grader, John Witherspoon: When I was about 6 years old I got 10c. I asked my mother if it could be 20c. When it was 20, I said give me a quarter. That's what my allowance is now. I feel that's enough for right now but next year I feel I could use about 50c. I want more but I feel it's a little too much for me right now. By the time I'm 13, I hope I get about a dollar a week.

Anne Simpson, 43 Clearview Avenue, 4th grader, Little Brook: I think I need $1 a week. I'm getting 35c. I really feel I need $1 so I can save up a lot of money. We have a lot of pets and sometimes I have to chip in to buy the food. I just feel I need more money.

Mark Freedman, 55 College Road West, 7th grader, Community Park: I don't think so. I only get $1 a week. That's pretty good but I have to pay for everything — like my stamp collection and things for my bicycle. I feel I should get about $2.50 a week. It's quite a jump but with inflation these days, you never can tell.

Larry Borger, 72 Clover Lane, 5th grader, Little Brook: I think my allowance is fine. I get $1 a week. I'm not like Mark — my mother pays for things like bike tires and movies. I pay for only personal things, so I think $1 is enough.

Dana Nini, 377 Walnut Lane, 4th grader, John Witherspoon: I think I could use $1 a week. I'm getting 50c now; I'd like 50c more. I can't work in peoples' gardens and things like that because I broke my hand playing ball. Right now I want to buy some baseball shoes with spikes and I'd like to save up.

Joe Gallo, 411 Franklin Avenue, PHS freshman: I don't get an allowance for one thing. My mother just gives me money when I need it and I think I get enough. She doesn't care when I need a couple of dollars to go some place.

Joann Henninger, 22 Clearview Avenue, 6th grader, Valley Road: I feel I could use about $1.50 a week. I'm getting $1 right now. We have four guinea pigs and I feel I should help buy the pellets. I would rather get more money so I could buy more things.

Michael Diamond, 393 Walnut Lane, 7th grader, Community Park: Not really, no. I feel I could use a penny more a week. That would give me four cents a month more or 48c a year. I feel if I could keep that pace I'd be all right. I get 50c a week now.

Dan Amarel, 25 White Pine Lane, 5th grader, Little Brook: I get 30c a week. I kind of guess it's all right. I don't get a lot of things but if you bought even as few as five things a week you would need $50. I'd like to save up and maybe buy something like a basketball. Thirty cents is okay for me but most people I feel should get about 50c a week.

Nick DiDonato, 384 Ewing Street, 5th grader, John Witherspoon: No. I feel I need about $1 a week; I'm getting 50c now. I'd like that doubled. I build models and I need more money to build them.

Mike Meservey, 72 Dorann Avenue, Middle School: My allowance only goes up a little bit each year but prices are going up faster than my allowance. I feel I could use about 75c a week more. I'm getting $1 a week now.

John Krystaponis, 31 Chestnut Street, 4th grader, St. Paul's: I don't get an allowance. I don't need it. My father gives me money when I need it but I have to tell him why I want it. If he thinks it is a good thing, he gives it to me.

Tony Ferrara, 476 N. Harrison Street, 6th grader, Community Park: I don't get an allowance. Anytime I want money, I get it. I think you get more that way. If I got an allowance, I feel I would need about $1.50 a week. The only things I buy are soda and ice cream — things like that.

free the counsellors for more time "to get to know the kids better."

They believe that a new file should be developed on the colleges, based upon information from PHS graduates who have finished or nearly finished their freshman year of college. "The kids who are going to college could read these files and have a better idea of what the college is like."

A third idea is that the high school students should organize an advisory committee for junior high students. Their purpose would be to brief the younger students about to enter the high school on various facets of high school life, such as school organizations, projects for school betterment that need working on and even the opportunities for jobs in the community.

The suggestions were the outgrowth of the workshop discussions held at the summer's Leadership Training Institute sponsored by Youth Associates. The teenagers taking part were from Princeton public and private schools and from Trenton public schools.

A Princeton Negro boy said that his friends didn't really believe they had a chance to make it" in the Princeton Regional Schools.

"What's the use," he said, "Nobody knows us. We're faceless. In class, when we raise our hands, we're not called on. The only thing we have to look forward to is sports . . ."

In speaking before 80 trainees of the Urban Teacher Corps, the youngsters said that teachers will have to find ways of "helping the students" and to "give students respect," implying a demand for understanding of home and community environment.

"It is the black revolution," an older student said, "that is really freeing up the system for the white boys who drop out of school. It might mean that colleges like Princeton University have to change and take not only the economically disadvantaged kids but the culturally disadvantaged."

Princeton students at the Institute included Simeon Moss, Laurie Burk, Alissa Cawley, Conway McGowan, Woody Nasin, Dan Schay, Dave Schlecht ag and Barbara Sullivan.

STUDENT SENATE FORMED

At Middle School. The Princeton Middle School will begin its second year with a student governing body.

A new student senate will be formed in September, headed by recently-elected officers and an elected representative from each homeroom. Principal Eugene Bitinger will serve as its advisor.

In May, in its first year, the Middle School elected student senate officers. They are Joanne Luchak, president; John Soderman, vice-president; Denise Boyer, corresponding secretary; Jill Irvine, recording secretary; Ann Whitall, treasurer; and Kevin Clancy, sergeant-at-arms. At the election of the officers, a constitution written by the first student senate and approved by the administration was also approved by the student body.

Although the concept of a student government is a new one to many of the Middle School students, the student senate has already made some contributions to the school. It has sponsored school dances and social activities, served as a forum for debate on student problems and organized the student dress-down and dress-up days.

ON THE JOB . . .

Vocational Courses Expand. Expansion is the word this fall in Princeton High School's vocational education curriculum.

Machinery has been set up for P.H.S. students to attend Trenton Vocational School half time if they wish; however, only one student, a senior, committeed so far, according to Kenneth Michael, principal. He will take auto mechanics, which P.H.S. doesn't have. Three other students "may," sign up.

The Princeton Regional Schools will pay tuition and the high school will provide transportation, if it's needed, said Mr Michael.

"Trade and Industry", a high school work study course under John Scott, will have 45 students in this, its fourth year. The course started out with only six students, jumped to 13 in its second year, then to 18 last year.

This is a course, chiefly for boys, with a chance for study as lab technician, glass worker, carpenter's assistant; "It's grown because the students are more aware of it," Mr. Michael thinks, "one guy will tell another 'hey, you ought to be in this . . .'"

"Distributive Education," the merchandizing course offered by Mrs. Barbara Silverstein, has grown, too. This course is about to start its third year. Most its students are girls.

"Local industry and business has been very, very co

TREE HOUSE OPENS

With Avant Garde Clothes. A boutique at 6 Moore Street, decorated with an apple tree whimsy, opens this Thursday with a way out collection of clothes by bright young designers from all over the country.

The brain child of Stuart Bellows, the Tree House is for free-thinking girls and women who find clothes fun and who are bored with the tweedy look.

"My customer has to have the best I can find," Mr. Bellows says with feeling. "I want them to have the most up-to-date, the most chic, the prettiest clothes." He has scoured the country to find them, knowledgeable from the years spent in developing the extensive women's fashions department at Bellow's, the parent store around the corner on Nassau Street.

The Tree House's goal, he says, "is to maintain real newness." The emphasis is on casual clothes, sportswear, with a few cocktail kind of clothes. Everything is in "junior" sizes, sizes 3 to 13.

"No One Silhouette." The dresses are generally short, but there is no one silhouette this year. These are changing times. You can do your own thing."

The Tree House has a challenging variety of dirndl skirts, skirts, bellbottom pants, pants suits, satin granny shirts, safari shirts with the long, pointed collar. Some of the dresses are shifty type but not really shifts. There are Fred Astaire pants, Valentino pants, signature scarves, headlight sunglasses, American Indian jewelry, chain belts. The boots, some of them up to the hip, haven't come in yet.

The boutique itself reflects an atmosphere of changing times. Eight different wall papers in soft shades are blended in the two show rooms. A stage coaches and the like, painted in bright orange, will be attached in random fashion to exterior walls—where space and ivy permits.

"We're trying to get colors that convey 'Princeton' as well as being bright and cheery," said Miss Orcutt. "We'll experiment with these and if we don't like it, we'll try something else."

Also, all the shrubbery and lawns in the center have been clipped or manicured to improve its appearance. "We're doing everything we can to bring it back, to revitalize it, to make it as an attractive place to shop as possible," commeated Miss Orcutt.

MERCHANTS LEND A HAND: Robert Shulman presents a check for $25 to Barbara McConnell of the Teen Unity Association, which sponsored a bake sale Thursday in front of Bamberger's in the Princeton Shopping Center. Next to Barbara, who was chairman of the sale, are Lisa Nanni and Barbara Swee. All are Princeton High School students. Mr. Shulman, owner of Robert's Shoes, is president of the Princeton Shopping Center Merchants' Association. The check plus $11.19 raised by the girls will be used to help pay the costs of activities of the Princeton Youth Center. (Staff Photo)

CHANGES ANNOUNCED

On RCA Technical Staff. Major changes in the top technical organization of RCA have been announced by President Robert W. Sarnoff.

Dr. George H. Brown was named Executive Vice-President for Patents and Licensing and Dr. James Hillier was appointed Vice-President for Research and Engineering, Dr. Brown's former position. Both men are residents of Princeton.

Dr. Brown, associated with RCA since 1933, will assume control of the company's patent operations, licensing and technical aid activities. A native of North Milwaukee, Wisconsn, he received B.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Wisconsin, studying electrical engineering.

The mural on the outside of the boutique was painted by Robert Rorex, whose work is on exhibit at Gallery 100. David Holman of New York City assisted in the decor.

REMODELING UNDERWAY

At Shopping Center. Resurfacing of the Princeton Shopping Center parking area and a remodeling of the exterior of the center has begun.

The entire parking area will be resurfaced and restripped a section at a time to limit the inconvenience, according to Miss Leslie Orcutt, assistant manager of the Shopping Center.

The resurfacing will start at the second entrance off Harrison Street near Bamberger's, come up in horseshoe fashion around the Acme Store and end near Center Stationers. Because the area to the rear of Bamberger's will be covered by the proposed expansion of the store, it will be left as is. The work is scheduled to be finished in two or three weeks.

Miss Orcutt, who began her duties here July 8, is an employee of Feist & Feist, a Newark-based leasing and management firm which took over managing the center from owner George Warneke. Mr. Warneke, however, retains control of the center.

Also on the list of repairs is a new paint cover. The canopy covering the sidewalks which encompass the center will be painted a chocolate brown, the supporting columns and light fixtures, gold. In addition, Colonial silhouettes of eagles,

Princeton Football '68: Experience and Power Blended

Defense Question Mark to Successful Year

HE'LL KEEP THEM HONEST: Defenses which overshift to stop Princeton's tailbacks and wingbacks will find they're giving away too much to fullback Ellis Moore, fn his sophomore year last fall, he scored ten touchdowns — five of them against Harvard for a Princeton and an Ivy League record.

SPORTS In Princeton

(FOOTBALL OUTLOOK III. Third of a series of four articles on Princeton's football prospects for 1968.)

When Princeton's offensive unit took the field against Dartmouth last fall for the final game of the season, it consisted of three sophomores, seven juniors and one senior. As matters developed in the tight, 17-14 defeat, it lacked the poise and experience to pull a close game out of the fire, but the cry of the erstwhile Flatbush Faithful could be heard as Princetonians in the crowd filed out of the Stadium. Wait 'til next year!

Now it is next year, and Tiger fans can look at a preseason depth chart which shows only one gap to be filled on the platoon charged with hanging points on the scoreboard. To round out an experienced offensive unit — one that paced the Tigers to at least two touchdowns in eight of their nine games last fall — Coach Dick Colman needs only to develop a shortside guard. As nearly as memory can serve, the extent of the holdover offensive strength has not been matched during the post World War II era.

The backfield, actually, has two complete units back intact as they functioned last November, with the exception that senior Scott MacBean must take over for Bob Weber, the reserve tailback in 1967. MacBean, however, is not short of experience.

There is good depth, too, on the line that will block for the returning ball carriers. There are two lettermen available at both the outside guard and tackle positions and two experienced centers.

Defense Has the Holes. The patching job — one that will require fairly sizeable rebuilding — is on defense. Up front, a middle guard and an end must be developed as starters; in the secondary, the search will be on for two linebackers and a defensive halfback.

Each of the departed regulars on the defensive platoon was a player of considerable ability. Linebacker Dick Sherlock was the only one who had not won his letter prior to his final year; cornerback Craig Stone, All-Ivy safetyman Bruce Wayne and end Charlie Baby were two-year lettermen, while Captain Lee Hitchner, middle guard for three seasons, had started every game of his varsity career.

It was, of course, defensive problems that proved the Tigers' undoing last season — first at Ithaca, where Cornell rolled to an unprecedented 47-13 triumph at their expense; then in the 29-7 loss to Yale, first Princeton victory in six years for the Elis; and finally in the 17-14 defeat by Dartmouth, an opponent the Tigers had the potential to control but could not in the end contain.

If it is the defense which must be rebuilt, it is the offense which must increase its ability to control the ball while it is in possession. The turning points in the Yale game were a safety and a blocked kick, which the Elis converted into nine points, while against Dartmouth, an interception late in the contest made the Indians' winning field goal possible.

A fortnight before the pads go on at Blairstown, the stability of the personnel picture from last season makes an estimate of the starting 1968 lineup relatively feasible. There will, however, be a necessary degree of tinkering to create the best combinations on both platoons — whether or not the above-average number of injuries which have beset Tiger squads of the past two seasons continue to mar the picture.

By positions, these are the players considered most likely to see most of the action this year, together with an indication of where the coaching staff has already singled out players expected to hold starting assignments:

Ends: On offense, 6-1, 210-lb. Mike Garton, a senior who won a job as a regular last fall after a sophomore season on the jayvees, and Mike Biros, 6-1, 195-lb. junior. Both block and receive well, while Biros is sufficiently versatile so that he has doubled as a linebacker. Behind Garton, a standout sophomore in 6-3, 198-lb. John Hess; battling for reserve action behind Biros, a 6-3, 196-lb. junior, Tom Peters, up from the jayvees, and a trio of sophomores.

On defense, the starter at left end figures to be Jim Nixon (6-0, 195), who earned his letter there as a sophomore. Len Brown, 5-10, 190, a varsity holdover, and Bud Nesbit, 6-2, 205, up from the freshmen, may be the pick of the reserves. At right end, there is considerable potential in the pair of senior Ron Prusek (6-1, 200) and Tom Hutchinson, a 6-4, 215-lb. junior, but both are question marks following knee surgery last year.

Tackles: A bright spot on both platoons. The inside berth belongs to 245-lb. Dave Hantz, who had a fine junior year and ranks as one of the team's top blockers. Next to him, the veteran Bruce Eckman, a mere 205 but smart, fast and a two-year letterman. Bob Jakse, 214-lb. senior, plays behind Eckman and gives the Tigers two lettermen at that position. Jim Tkacik (212) and Ed Gundolf (209), both juniors, are Hantz's principal backup men.

There are a pair of veterans on defense, too. Seniors Dick Sandler (215) and Tim McCann (240) are the probable starters, with another letterman, 235-lb. junior Bob Hews, right behind McCann. Sophomore Chuck Dressel (225) is expected to top the race to rank as Sandler's replacement. Holdover strength at the vital tackle spots is greater than at any time in a number of years.

Guards: The one spot on offense cleaned out by graduation is shortside guard, in- to which sophomore Steve Saner may fit. At 6-3, 215 lbs., he comes up to the varsity with the tag of "top lineman" on a good freshman team. Junior Paul von Bergen, (208), a 1967 jayvee, will provide the principal competition for the job.

The longside, or running guard slot, will be well filled by veterans Joe Fresch (207), a starter since November of his sophomore year, and Mike Guerin (210), a sophomore letter-winner last fall. Both are highly dependable.

Middle guard on defense, likewise swept clean by graduation, is likely to find the versatile Bill Schopf (210) taking over. A center as a freshman, he played defensive end last fall and is considered by the coaching staff as "sure to make it somewhere."

Center. Bob Slivinski (6-2, 225) put in a fine year as a junior last fall when he won the starting assignment quickly. His availability for another season strengthens the offensive line greatly. Stew Dill, a 195-lb junior, is the back-up man here. He will be used primarily on the long snaps for punts and placements.

Offensive Backs: Is Ellis Moore a better fullback than Cosmo Iacavazzi? The full story won't be in until Moore has completed his career, but his statistics as a sophomore were more impressive than the former Tiger All-American's. In his first season, he gained more yards (484) and scored more touchdowns (10), setting an Ivy League record of five in one game.

Moore (5-11, 195) and Captain Rich Bracken will give Princeton a fine one-two punch, providing a high degree of polish because of their unusual experience. Two years ago, Bracken (6-1, 205) became the first sophomore since Royce Flippen '56 to start at the key tailback spot.

Dan White, a 6-1, 190-lb. junior, is like Bracken in that he gained considerable experience as a regular in his first year on the varsity. He took over for the injured Bob Schoene at quarterback for the last six games of the season and performed solidly as a blocker and signal-caller.

The fourth member of the starting quartet will be Jim Koloski, a senior who combines speed and fine blocking on his 5-11, 182-lb. frame. He moved into the starting berth at wingback midway through the 1967 season and rounds out a veteran quartet whose return as a unit will aid the Tigers markedly, especially in the early going when an offense normally takes much time to mesh its gears.

Of the reserve backfield, only Bob Weber has graduated. Dave Miller at wingback and Don Hazen at fullback are senior lettermen. Jon Wright, captain of the 1970 freshman team, backed up White last fall, and senior Scott MacBean will step in for Weber as Bracken's prime replacement.

Numerous other ball carriers have potential. The pick among them is probably sophomore tailback Brian McCullough, but there is enough good material so that a third backfield operating as a unit is a distinct possibility.

Linebackers, Defensive Backs: Three seniors are missing from 1967's defensive secondary, but there are sufficient varsity holdovers to fill all the starting positions, particularly if junior Arnie Holzberg recovers from knee surgery. A 215-lb. linebacker, he has the potential to step into a key assignment.

Senior Bill Bittner (198) and junior Ron Miles (215) were also slowed by injuries last fall but are being counted on for key duty this season. Junior Mike Manzo, who was the starting cornerback last fall until he broke his wrist, is the probable starter there.

In the deep secondary, juniors Keith Mauney and Pete Lips both showed unusual ability quickly last year, particularly Mauney — on all vital duties from tackling and pass defense to punt returns. Back-up strength will come primarily from Ted Mouzakeotis, Bob Bord-

PAST AND PRESENT: Lee Hilchner, 1967 football captain (right) leaves a big hole to be filled at middle guard on defense, but Captain Rich Bracken will begin his third year as starting tailback. Coach Dick Colman, surveying an offensive platoon which has ten returning regulars, admits that "our 1968 team will be a relatively experienced one." Tigers, expected to improve on last year's 6-3 mark and fourth-place Ivy League finish, are rated as chief threat to derail Yale's bid to become first repeating champion in Ivy history.

ley and sophomore Chris Waugh, captain of last year's freshmen.

Specialists: Watch for sophomore Chris Montgomery, a reserve tailback, to develop as a placekicker, giving senior Ted Garcia a run for his money after the disappointing year that the soccer-style Latin American hooter had. Rich Bracken and Ellis Moore will divide the punting chores and if either Montgomery or Garcia can produce field goals satisfactorily from 20 to 25 yards out, the Tigers will be second to none among the Ivies in the kicking department.

BOMBERS TIE JETS

In Summer Basketball Loop.

What seemed remote three weeks ago, happened Sunday when the Bombers tied the Jets for the lead at the end of regulation play. Both teams finished the Summer Basketball League with 8-4 records.

A tie for second place also developed when the Panthers upset the Jets in Sunday's second game, 88-82. As a result, the Panthers and the Raiders finished all even at 6-6. The fifth entry in the five-team league, the Stars, ended solidly in the cellar with a 2-10 record.

After a pair of one-game sudden death playoffs to determine the first and second place winners, the final playoff for the league championship will begin Sunday. This will be a best of three series.

In the first game of Sunday's double-header, the Bombers, needing a win to stay alive, faced the Raiders. The Bombers won, 87-74.

For the Raiders, it was a case of too much Gerry Gunnell and Ed McEwen. Gunnell, former 6-4 Delaware State standout, poured in 42 points to tie the league's individual scoring mark. McEwen, the league's leading scorer, contributed 20 points.

Ed's younger brother, Ron, was high for the losers with 24. Both are former starters on Little Tiger teams.

A key factor in the Bombers win was the failure of Willie Hill to produce in the second half. Second on the high scoring list in the league and the top offensive player for the Raiders, Hill scored only one point in the second half before fouling out. He left the game with 12 points—half of his season's average.

With their game out of the way, the Bombers and Raiders snt back to watch the Jet-Panther contest. A Jet win would eliminate the need for playoffs.

For the third consecutive time, the once high-flying Jets were faced with the need to win just one more to clinch the title. For the third time, they failed.

The Jets, who seemingly became unglued after a surprising upset of the Raiders three games earlier, gave it all they had. At the half, it was 46-45, Panthers. Late in the game, it was 77-75. The turning point came with about three minutes to play, when, nursing a four-point lead, the Panthers attempted to hold the ball, forcing the Jets to foul.

Their strategy worked. Converting 1-and-1 situations, the Panthers won it from the foul line, hitting on 18 of 23. The best the Jets could do was 8 of 18. Four vital points by Princeton High's Billy Brooks—a key basket and a 1-and-1 conversion—helped the Panthers to pull away.

High for the Panthers were John Black of Bordentown, 28 points, and Gene McKnight, 24. For the Jets, the pinpoint outside shooting of Norm Starks kept them in the game. He had 26.

Stars in Upset. Thursday night, the Stars engineered perhaps the biggest upset of the season by edging the Bombers, 76-72. Previously the Stars had lost nine in a row. In the second contest, the Raiders put it all together to bury the Panthers, 93-76.

Four players accounted for all but two of the Stars' 76 points. The winners were led by player-coach Marv Trotman who hit for 30, despite a recent illness from which he was still recovering. Trotman, one of the first stars developed by former PHS coach Tony Borzok in the early 50's, will join the PHS football coaching staff this fall.

Trotman was aided by Howard Davis, 18 points, and Bill Cusamano and John Dixon, who scored 13 apiece. The rebounding of Davis and Dixon helped the Stars pull to a 38-29 halftime bulge.

Ed McEwen (21), Len Carmichael (20) and Colin Lietch (16) were the only three to hit double figures for the Bombers. Gunnell was held to 9 by the surprising Stars.

In the opener, 28-point performances by the Panthers' George Tucker and John Black were blunted by a combined offense of the Raiders. Willie Hill, 30 points, and eJrry Witherspoon, 26 points, were the chief architects of the rout, although they got 32-point support from coach Ed Riddick and Ron McEwen who tallied 16 each.

By halftime, the Raiders had a commanding 54-36 halftime lead.

It carries loads other small cars shouldn't carry.
The SAAB V-4 Station Wagon is not like ordinary small wagons. It may look small on the outside (like the rest), but it's not small on the inside. It's full of room. Elbow room. Leg room. Head room. And loads of room for loads. Over half ton loads plus people. Or 375 pounds of baggage plus more people. Or no loads at all plus even more people in a backward-facing rear seat. (It has front-wheel drive for incredible control and traction on any surface.)
And as an optional extra, our new V-4 engine has a LIFETIME GUARANTEE.

It does things other small cars shouldn't do.

Cornering at high speeds is one of the last things to expect small cars to do, successfully. Unless it's a SAAB, the out-of-the-ordinary small car. Out of the ordinary because it has front-wheel drive. So it doesn't push you around like others do. It pulls you around corners, curves and other drivers' mistakes. Is that all SAAB has? Not on your life. Most ordinary cars don't give you, even as options, all the standard SAAB safety features.
As an optional extra, our new V-4 engine has a LIFETIME GUARANTEE.

SANDY MEASEY REPEATS

As Stony Brook Champion. Sixteen-year-old Clyde "Sandy" of Measey of Skyfield Drive won the Junior Tournament (18 and under) Friday for the second straight year at the Stony Brook Golf Club in Hopewell. Sandy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde F. Measey, shot a sparkling 64.

Two weeks ago, he won the junior and senior combined championship of Stony Brook with a round of 68. The former Princeton Day School student now attends Choate School where he hopes to become a member this year of the varsity golf team. He has been playing the game for about three years.

One who can attest to the rapid development of Sandy's game is his father. Mrs. Measey reported that her husband, who "plays a good game," is coming off second best in matches with his son.

ALL-STARS END SEASON

With Doubleheader Split. The Princeton YMCA All Stars dropped a 4-3 opener to a Queens, Long Island nine Saturday at Queens Village, but came back in the nightcap, 5-4, to even their season record at six wins, six losses and a tie.

Jeff Bannon suffered the first loss of his Little League — YMCA career in the opener, as he gave up only three hits but was victim of some sloppy fielding by his teammates.

In the second game, Princeton, behind 4-0 after three innings, rallied for the victory on hitting by Ken Rickert, Larry Parker, Bannon and Jackie Petrone. Parker took the win with late inning relief from Bannon.

Earlier in the week, the Montgomery Self Starters handed Princeton a 4-3 loss, despite a record-breaking 17 strikeouts by Dave Parmenter. Bannon again led the Princeton attack with two doubles and a triple in five trips to the plate.

ERC UPSETS ASTRO

In BSL Division Playoff. ERC pulled off the first surprise in the opening round of the Business Softball League playoffs last week when it whipped RCA Astro in two consecutive games. Behind 5-3 going into the final inning of the second contest, the winners rallied for six runs and captured a 9-5 victory and the right to meet RCA Labs A in the semi-final round.

RCA A had no trouble disposing of fourth place Dow Jones, 9-0, and 10-4. In the eastern playoffs, McGraw Hill moved up with a pair of easy victories over RCA Labs B, 12-3 and 10-5.

In the only series to go three games, Columbian Carbon beat Accelerator 9-2 in the deciding contest.

Mike DiAngelo's bases loaded four-bagger was the big blow in the six-run seventh inning for ERC. Ed Paulsin collected four hits in four at bats to complete a perfect eight for eight in the two-game series. Ed Shaw hit a home run for the losers.

In the first game Larry Rock and Charles Marinko followed Paulsin's lead with three hits apiece, as ERC jumped out to a four-run advantage in the first and was never headed. Dick Lensis and Phil Moody collected two hits each for Astro.

In its doubleheader with Dow Jones, RCA Labs A scored five runs in the first inning of the first contest, and eight in the initial frame of the second and coasted the rest of the way. Pitcher Max Hopkins and fine defensive play by the winners didn't allow a Dow Jones runner past second base in the 9-0 triumph. Ron Infanti led the attack in the second, going four for four.

Tom Briel batted out seven hits in seven trips over two games to lead McGraw Hill to its two triumphs. Briel smashed two homers and Ange Vasti, one, in the first game, and winning pitcher Tom Wood didn't give up a hit to RCA Labs B batters until the fourth inning.

Jerry Jarecki walloped two long four-baggers in the night cap, with Wood again on the mound for the winners. Wood also aided his cause with three hits.

Columbian Carbon might have won the series against Accelerator in the first two games. It captured the middle contest, 10-3, and only lost the first game, when Accelerator scored four runs in the bottom of the last inning and gained a 9-8 decision.

A Word of Explanation.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

In her letter last week objecting to "pats on the back", Mrs. Sharon apparently does not know how the Small Animal Rescue League is organized. The "head" of the League is the President of the Board of an agency like those which Mrs. Sharon mentions, and is elected to serve like officers of other voluntary organizations.

The warm letters of appreciation which have appeared in the press and to which Mrs. Sharon objects, refer to the work done by the salaried executive secretary of the League. Words of praise are rare nowadays, but it does not seem out of place for the grateful owner of a pet who has been helped in some difficulty by Mrs. Graves, to write a note of thanks and support of the work of the League.

Mrs. Sharon, if she has any pets, has probably never been through the uncertainty and distress of losing a dog or cat, and the relief and gratitude felt when it has been found and returned. But I do not see why she should object to other people expressing thanks for such services rendered by the Small Animal Rescue League.

Like the volunteers whom Mrs. Sharon mentioned, Mrs. Graves' gratification comes from the results of her work, and it is not her fault if grateful people write to the papers about it. Incidentally, although Mrs. Graves is a busy salaried worker, she finds time to do her share of volunteer work —at school, canvassing for the Heart Fund, and other charitable activities.

Civil Rights Violated.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Recently the Princeton Borough Council, under pressure from a few merchants and some civic-minded citizens, passed a new anti-loitering law. The law was designed to stop "congregations" of youths from forming along Nassau Street.

At 8:45 p.m. on August 7, 1968, my brother Rick, a 20 year old taxpaying borough resident, was arrested for failing to "move it" when commanded to do so by a borough policeman. At the time he was talking with a young lady on the sidewalk near Pietrinferno's Restaurant.

This event strengthens the doubts many skeptics had concerning the handling of the law.

Amendment I to the Constitution of the United States of America guarantees "the right of people peaceably to assemble", a right denied those who have to "move it" or jump when the police crack the whip.

I find it difficult to believe that the citizens of Princeton who point proudly to their history of great tolerance for every point of view, to the Princeton Plan, and to their academic heritage, can nod approvingly as the basic rights of citizens are denied.

Close Down The Quarry.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Perhaps it would be a good idea gradually to close down the Kingston Trap Rock Industries Quarry.

It has been a nuisance in various way for over thirty years, even though the management has changed in this period. The quarry, under any management, seems to be incompatable with the surrounding residential areas of Princeton, Kingston, Rocky Hill and Griggstown.

When it first began, around 1860, men worked with picks and shovels; it was a small operation. Today, its modern machinery, heavy blasts, and great carrying-trucks excavate enormous holes in the countryside in a relatively short time. The land is then simply left in a devastated condition; a case of despoiling the land and go on to the next piece.

I believe the quarry supplies road-making material and either has or hopes to install a cement plant (these usually have air polluting smoke stacks), and an asphalt plant.

It seems to me that to curtail the quarry would have a double benefit: besides cutting down the noise, blasting, pollution, and other annoyances to the area residents, it might, by rationing road-making supplies, help to diminish the passion for building so many new roads and superhighways over the nearby countryside (which would be better left green), and cause officials to install some better means of transportation — high speed trains on the old railway lines, for example.

Parked Cars Looted

Three cars parked in the Witherspoon and Tulane lots were broken into last week.

Early Monday afternoon, Mrs. E.L. Park, 32 Wilton Street, reported the theft of an antique bronze floor lamp from her car in the lot next to the Public Library. She valued it at $200.

Monday evening at 9:35, Miss Wanda Lipol of Columbia Avenue, Hopewell, reported that the battery had been removed from her car parked in an adjacent lot on the corner of Tulane and Spring Streets. "We've had quite a number of thefts in that area," Reported Chief Peter J. Mc Crohan.

Earlier in the week, two $10 rolls of quarters were taken from the glove compartment of a car whose owner police identified as Joseph Banana of Queens, N.Y. The car, parked in the Witherspoon lot, had been broken into, police said.

BOMBERS OVER JETS

For First Place. In the first of two playoff games Monday night in the Summer Basketball League, the Bombers defeated the Jets, 82-55, to win the regular season's championship. The Bombers ended 9-4; the Jets, 8-5.

In a second game to determine third and fourth place, the Raiders defeated the Panthers, 78-61. As a result of this game, a second playoff between the Jets and Raiders was scheduled for this Wednesday evening at 6 on the new court behind the YMCA on Avalon Place.

The winner will earn the right to meet the Bombers in the finals, which will start Sunday. The finals will be a best-of-three series, according to league commissioner, Arch Freeman.

In its showdown battle with the Jets, the Bombers had the momentum once held by the losers, who skidded from 8-1 and lost their fourth in a row. The Bombers quickly built up a 23-13 lead before two of the Jet starters, Norm Starks and Bill Turner, arrived. At the half with the latecomers still cold, the score was 38-20.

Then Starks got hot. He hit on five consecutive long shots from outside as the Jets whittled the Bombers' lead to 42-33. That scare was all Eddie Mc Ewen, the league's number one scorer, needed to take over.

Eddie, only 5-8, scored 12 points during the next 10 minutes to blunt the Jet comeback. He finished with 20. As the game progressed, the Bombers picked up steam and the Jets tired noticeably. They started to foul, committing a total of 27. Starks was one of the first to foul out and that was the end of the once-proud Jets.

Four other Bombers finished in double figures. They were Pete Alford; Colin Leitch, former PHS and Florida State performer, who tallied 13 but more important was his rugged play under the boards; Gerry Gunnell, 11 points; and Len Carmichael, 10.

One Man Show. When a player gets hot, there's not much the opposition can do. Such was the case with Jerry Witherspoon of the Raiders (7-6) in leading his team to victory over the Panthers (6-7).

Witherspoon scored 25 of his team's 37 points in the first half on a dazzling display of outside shooting. "They couldn't stop him; he was a one-man show," commented Freeman. "He's a fantastic shooter."

Held to 21 points in the first half, the Panthers rallied briefly on the shooting of George Tucker and John Bailey, closing the margin to 10 at one point. Willie Hill, the league's second high scorer, got the bulk of his 15 points in the half to keep the game out of reach of the Panthers.

Tucker, like Hill a former PHS player, had 22 for the losers. Bailey finished with 20.

The five high scorers in the league at the end of the regular season are McEwen of the Bombers, 268 points and a 22.3 average; Hill of the Raiders, 256, 23.3; Gunnell of the Bombers, 254, 21.2; Witherspoon, Raiders, 224, 18.7; and Bailey, Panthers, 183, 15.3.

The five coaches selected an all-star team. It consists of George Hopkins and Starks from the Jets; John Dixon from the Stars; Hill and Witherspoon from the Raiders; Bailey and Tucker, Panthers; and McEwen, Gunnell and Carmichael, Bombers.

Can Johnny Read!

A total of 190,398 books circulated in seven of the Princeton schools last year, a rate that kept the librarians busy overtime and developed a growing corps of student assistants.

In round numbers, the Princeton High School students read 40,000 books, an average of 22.1 per student. At Princeton Day School, the Upper School average was 20.8.

The Middle School of the Regional School System recorded a total circulation of 25,000 books from the libraries at Community park and Valley Road, giving an average of 26.4 books per youngster. Princeton Day's Middle School tried harder, coming up with an average of 28 books per student.

Johnson Park youngsters set the record for the elementary schools. Its 284 students read 18,000 books, for an average of 63.3 per child. A close second was Littlebrook School. Its 589 pupils toted up a circulation figure of 34,000, averaging 61 books per student.

John Witherspoon School recorded a circulation of 38,000 books, for a 41.7 average per student. Riverside School reported 18,000 circulation, averaging 35 per child.

As with all statistics, there are footnotes. While there is a definite drop in the books borrowed by the junior high school students at Valley Road and Community Park, these are the years when the students use 20 to 40 different titles in paperback books as classroom texts. The same footnote applies to the Princeton High School circulation figure.

FOUR ARE FINED

In Borough Court. Four Princeton area motorists were fined Monday night in Borough Court by Judge Louis Gerber, sitting in for vacationing magistrate Theodore T. Tams Jr.

Harold T. Thomas, 26, 24 Witherspoon Lane, and James A. Esposito, 26, 9 Harris Road, were each fined $15. Mr. Thomas for failing to be accompanied by a licensed driver while driving on a permit and Mr. Esposito for failing to observe roadway directional lines.

Mark Bahadurian, 20, 15 Merritt Lane, Rocky Hill, paid $10 for taking on passengers in the middle of a roadway, and William E. Carroll, 18, 54 Murray Place, paid $10, driving with a rear license plate that was not illuminated.

JUVENILES ARRESTED

For Shooting Street Lights. Two Princeton juveniles, age 16 and 17, were arrested last week by Borough police and charged with malicious mischief for shooting out street lights in the Borough's western section.

Acting on calls from residents, patrol cars from the Borough and Township converged on the area. Borough Chief Peter J. McCrohan reported when the boys saw the police cars arrive they ran from their car but were later apprehended. About seven lights were broken, he said, on or near the corners of Boudinot Street, Library Place and Westcott Road. The incident took place between 3 and 4 Thursday morning.

The youths were referred to Mercer County Juvenile Judge J. Wilson Noden. Chief McCrohan said that police found BB guns in the youths' car.

CAR CATCHES FIRE

Faulty Carburetor Blamed. A car parked in front of 75 Spruce Street caught fire Monday morning when a faulty carburetor spewed gas over its motor.

The Borough's motorcycle patrolman, nthony Ranfone, was first to arrive on the scene. He was joined moments later by Pfl. Thomas Mischaud in a patrol car. Both emptied the portable fire extinguishers on the blazing motor but were unable to put it out. A piece of apparatus from Mercer Engine Co. No. 3 was called to aid the policemen.

The car is owned by Howard H. Loar, 35 Linwood Circle. At the time, it was being road tested by Stanley Kline of nearby Kline's Esso Station. Mr. Kline escaped injury but the car, its front badly damaged, had to be towed away.

Obituaries

Watts S. Humphrey, 71, died August 20 at his home, 25 Cleveland Lane.

Born in Saginaw, Mich., Mr. Humphrey attended Exeter and Princeton University prior to joining the Army Flight Corps in World War I. He was graduated in 1921 from Massachusetts Institute of Technology and served for a period as a mining engineer in Ecuador.

He was subsequently engaged in the financial field, including the position of vice-president of General Reinsurance Company. In 1941, he became a colonel in the 8th Air Force in Great Britain, where he played a major role in planning bombing missions over Germany and flew on some of the missions. After the war, he took part in a survey to establish the effectiveness of strategic bombing.

Can Vietnam Be Neutralized?

Prof. Cyril E. Black

A plan proposing the neutralization of South Vietnam has been presented by four professors at Princeton University's Center of International Studies. While admitting that it would satisfy no side completely, they believe that "it meets to a surprising and substantial degree" the fundamental aims of the United States, Vietcong, and North Vietnam.

Prepared by Professors Cyril E. Black, Richard A. Falk, Klaus Knorr and Oran R. Young, the plan which received much publicity in last Thursday's New York Times envisions the withdrawal of both United States and North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam and the temporary establishment of an international peace-keeping force. This would be removed upon the creation of a neutral government in Saigon.

Professor Black told the Times that he and his colleagues drew their encouragement from what they considered moderate statements on Vietnam by the leading Presidential candidates and from what Professor Falk reported after a recent trip to Hanoi concerning a favorable response to the principles of the plan.

"There have been strong indications from both sides in the past month that the desire to reach a compromise is greater than earlier, when they were talking about pushing through to victory," Professor Black said. "We were surprised with the fact that neutralization was not being discussed."

Laid down along broad guidelines, the proposal lists the advantages of and disadvantages of neutralization to both sides:

"The United States would achieve through neutralization the withdrawal of the armed forces of North Vietnam from the territory of South Vietnam and a basis for the self-determination and territorial integrity of the latter state. At the same time, it would be called upon to withdraw its own armed forces from the territory of South Vietnam and to accept the compromise political system within that state that may be formed under the conditions created by neutralization.

"North Vietnam would achieve through neutralization an end to the war, and the withdrawal of the American forces from Vietnam. They would have to give up for an indefinite or for an agreed period, their goal of reunifying the two Vietnams, and would be called upon to respect the outcome of the processes of self-determination and to recognize the continuing existence of a separate state in the South."

TEENAGE DANCE FRIDAY

Null Set To Play. The Null Set will play for the teenage dance sponsored by the Princeton Recreation Department to be held Friday evening from 8:30 to 11:30 in the Princeton High School parking lot. In the event of rain, the dance will be cancelled.

A favorite with the teenagers for these outdoor dances, The Null Set will be making its second appearance in the series. Bob Korman, a senior at PDS, is the leader of the group. He plays lead guitar, organ and is one of the singing members of the band.

The other members are Bob Severson, PHS senior, organ, rhythm guitar, vocalist; David Mack, PHS senior, drums and vocalist; John Houston, PHS junior, rhythm guitar, organ, vocalist; and Todd Marshall, PHS freshman. Todd is substituting for Kip Heacock, the group's regular bass player.

Teenagers living in Princeton or who attend Princeton schools are eligible to attend.

COFFEE SHOP CLOSES

At Princeton Hospital. The Princeton Hospital Aid Coffee Shop will be closed through Labor Day for complete renovations.

It will reopen Tuesday, September 3. The Hospitals gift shop will remain open as usual during the renovation period.

GOLDBERG APPOINTED

As University Lecturer. Former United Nations Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg will give a graduate seminar in "International Negotiations" this fall at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. In connection with the course, he has been appointed as the Charles Evans Hughes Lecturer in International Affairs with rank of professor, a newly-created lectureship.

In his course, the former Supreme Court Justice and Secretary of Labor plans to analyze the nature of international negotiations and discuss their similarities with domestic negotiations. He is currently a member of the New York law firm of Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton and Garrison.

"We are looking forward eagerly to Justice Goldberg's participation in our teaching program," Dr. Marver H. Bernstein, Dean of the Woodrow Wilson School, commented. "His experience in processes of bargaining and negotiation in national and international affairs will be invaluable for the education of talented persons for careers in public life."

LIBRARY PLAN PROGRAM

Of Six Teenage Films. The Princeton Public Library will present six films by New York teenagers Wednesday, August 28, at 8 p.m., with free tickets available at the library, 65 Witherspoon Street, for all teenagers.

Jaime Barrios, co-director of the University Settlement Film Club on the lower East Side, will lead an open discussion of the films following the 40-minute showing.

The films range from "Arabesque," a study of estrangement in a series of vignettes in the life of a 15-year old girl to "Let's Get Nice," an 18-year-old's photographic version of a marijuana reverie.

News Of The CHURCHES

"Sunday" School on Wednesdays

ECUMENICAL CHURCH SCHOOL PLANNERS include (from left) Miss Freda Gardiner of the Princeton Theological Semiuary faculty, Mother Mary Cecilia Wheeler, religious superior at the Stuart School of the Sacred Heart, and Mrs. C. George Fitzgerald, founder of the pilot school held last year in First Presbyterian Church. Together with A. Perry Morgan Jr. of Trinity Church, they form the board of directors of the new "Weekday Christian Education Program" sponsored by the Princeton Christian Unity Committee.

ENROLLMENT OPENS

For Wednesday School. The informal and interdenominational church re-opens this fall for children in grades 1 to 5. Enrollment, limited to 60 children, is available through the church offices.

Known as the Princeton Weekday Christian Education program, the school provides a supplementary experience for the children of Princeton churches and others who may be interested. The Princeton Christian Unity Committee has assumed sponsorship of the program.

Parents who enroll their children are expected to commit themselves to participate in no more than four meetings during the school year. At the meetings, various aspects of the parents' roles in the child's Christian education will be studied.

A board of directors guides the program under PCUC supervision. Directors are Mrs. George Fitzgerald of First Presbyterian Church, Mother Mary Cecilia Wheeler of Stuart Country Day School, A. Perry Morgan Jr. of Trinity Episcopal Church, and Miss Freda Gardner of the Princeton Seminary faculty. Mrs. Ermaine Gaskins of Witherspoon Street Presbyterian Church is treasurer.

Classes will be held from 3 to 4:30 in Calvary Baptist Church, Walnut Lane. Teachers will be Princeton Seminary students who are majoring in Christian education, under the supervision of Miss Gardner. The classes are limited to 12 children.

There will be eleven sessions in each semester, October-January, February-April, (school holidays are recognized) and the tuition is $12 per semester, or $8 for a second child in the family.

The Difference. Miss Gardner who worked closely with Mrs. Fitzgerald in the pilot program held last year at First Presbyterian Church, relates the story of a little girl in the program who told her distainfully, "Of course you can't have Sunday School on Wednesday!" Asked where she went on Wednesday afternoons, she answered, "To Good school."

"The phrase may be an affront to the theologians, public school teachers, Christian educators," Miss Gardner comments, "but to this girl it made good sense. What she did on Wednesday afternoons was a lot like school. She wore school clothes, she worked and played with a wide variety of children, she learned things and did a lot of different things.

"But it was also different. What she did and heard and saw were interpreted within the perspective of the Christian faith with explicit reference to her own life and her own becoming. God was close to her life and learning in her class."

The Wednesday school, Miss Gardner sums, is for the children of parents who acknowledge the primary and vital role of the home in their child's total growth and development, who recognize that the Christian faith must be seen as relevant within the real world of the child if it is to be accepted and operative in his life.

"Parents may want to consider the Princeton Weekday Christian Education Program as one of their commitments for this year. It will take some of your child's time and some of your time; it will mean saying no to some other options . . . for some of you, it may prove well worth it." Add Topics

YOUTH TO REPORT

At PCUC Picnic-Workshop. The spacious ground at All Saints' Chapel of Trinity Parish will be the scene this Tuesday of the fourth and final summer workshop on "Poverty and Plenty," sponsored by the Princeton Christian Unity Committee.

Princeton young people who have worked this summer in a wide variety of improverished areas will report on their experiences. Jerry Van Sant of Calvary Baptist Church, co-chairman of the PCUC, is in charge of the porgram.

Opportunity will be given for questions and discussion in small groups with the youth leaders. The program will also serve as a summary session. Questions and issues raised in the earlier workhops will be brought into the discussion.

A covered dish suoper is scheduled for 6:15 to 7 p.m. Families are asked to bring a main dish, salad or dessert in a quantity sufficient for themselves plus three. Beverage and table service will be provided. The program begins at 7. Admission is free. Nursery and child care is provided.

The PCUC workshops, attended by an average 125 adults and children, have been held this summer at the Stuart School of the Sacred Heart, First Baptist Church and Princeton Methodist Church. Mrs. James McPherson is chairman of the planning committee.

Assisting her are Mrs. Thomas Webb of Princeton Methodist, Mrs. Lawreace O'Brien and A. Munroe Wade of St. Paul's, Mrs. Albert J. Romeril of First Presbyterian, Judson Carter and Mrs. Martha Barbour of First Baptist, Mrs. William H. Cherry of All Saints' Chapel, A. Perry Morgan of Trinity, Mrs. Charles West, representing Witherspoon Church, and Jerry Van Sant of Calvary Baptist.

Merrill's Toy Corner

Merrill Zinder

STRANGE CHANGE, a new and different toy from Mattel, is this week's item. Take a mysterious Time Capsule, put it into the Time Machine Chamber and see it transformed into a creature from the lost world (prehistoric animals). If you like, put it into the Time Machine Compressor and the creature is returned to capsule form. This process of create, destroy and create can be repeated over and over. Also included is a 3D landscape storage base and illustrated map.

From all indications, this toy will be a sellout before Christmas, so I would recommend buying it as soon as possible. Recommended ages: 6-12.

STUART HILL . . .

Once you come out with us to see this land, we believe you'll agree that these wooded 2-acre lots are the most desirable building sites available in all of Princeton. Next to the beautiful new Stuart Country Day School, and only a short walk from the Princeton Day School on The Great Road, this neighborhood appeals to people who dream of living in castles among towering trees. All utilities already installed, of course, including city water and city sewer. 25% of the lots have been bought this year, but many of the choicest are waiting for you to look at. Telephone at any time for information, and a map of the area.

Prices begin at $23,000

NELSON RIDGE . . . in this lovely area, which is still rural in character yet is only a few minutes from the center of Princeton, this long, low white one-story home offers a great deal to people interested in large living areas for entertainment . . . or work. The house has foyer, living room, large dining room, modern kitchen, and a vast family room with wall-to-wall carpeting. Both the den and the screened breezeway have fireplaces. Master bedroom with dressing room and bath. 2 small bedrooms and bath adjoin the den, which could also be a study room for children. Game room in basement. 1½ acres of land. (*) $55,000

RIVERSIDE . . . this fine home, located in one of Princeton's most admired neighborhoods, is in mint condition. Entry hall, living room with fireplace, ample dining room, very modern kitchen with electric dishwasher and disposal (and a good-sized breakfast area), study — or 4th bedroom — and bath. Spacious family room with an exit to the patio. Upstairs: 3 more bedrooms and 2 very large tiled baths. Exterior has been freshly painted. In winter, three thermostats provide very flexible heating. In Summer, a huge attic fan and many fine big shade trees make this a very comfortable residence (*) $57,500

NEAR THE LAKE . . . and with central air-conditioning too! On a high lot with many lofty shade trees, this fine home will appeal to people who appreciate perfection. The living room, with its high ceiling, companionable fireplace and the opulent wall-to-wall carpeting, has a balcony leading to 3 bedrooms (one, extra large, for it was planned to be two) and two baths. The dining room is very spacious, and the very modern kitchen has plenty of space for both and chairs. Downstairs: family room with bar, guest (or maid's) room and bath. Two-car attached garage. In the attic, a darkroom and lots of storage space. Outdoors: a large swimming pool in a completely fenced yard, beautifully landscaped. All in all, a wonderful home, in excellent condition. (*) $69,500

SIX BEDROOMS . . . just a year ago, this family with seven children found a century-old farm house on an acre, with great old shade trees, only 5 minutes from the Junction. Completely restored after the manner of Colonial Williamsburg, the house has a spacious center hall with a wide staircase that instantly reveals the fact no expense was ever spared in its construction, or its restoration. To the right is a very large living room with fireplace. To the left, a dining room big enough for twelve, a breakfast room, a modern kitchen with stainless steel sink, electric dishwasher, new Formica counter tops, a walk-in pantry and a modern laundry. At the end of the hall, there's a full bathroom (brand new) which can be a powder room for guests, or where the children can wash up as soon as they enter the house. Downstairs, the ceilings are high. Upstairs, there are 6 bedrooms and 2 more brand new bathrooms. In the attic three huge cedar closets. Brand new air-conditioners cool both floors. (All equipment, and draperies, included in the sale.) (*) $65,000

(*) Many more fine homes in Princeton and vicinity in every price range. Ample parking space for our clients.
